Clark shelves embassy shift

Mideast change first

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Clark said today the government is delaying indefinitely a plan to move the Canadian embassy in Israel to Jerusalem from Tel Aviv.

Clark made the announcement in the Commons as he tabled an interim report from Robert Stanfield, former Conservative leader, just returned from a trip to investigate the matter in the Middle East.

Clark said the government is accepting the Stanfield recommendation that no action be taken on the status of Jerusalem until that situation in the Middle East is clarified within a comprehensive agreement between Israel and its neighbors.

Clark first promised to shift the embassy from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem during the May 22 election campaign. The move was viewed as an attempt to capture Jewish votes in several Toronto-area ridings.

The day after he became prime minister, Clark promised he would press ahead with the plan. This provoked a storm of protest from opposition parties, from businessmen and from Arab countries.

As the storm mounted, Clark decided to appoint Stanfield as "ambassador extraordinary" to examine the issue and to defer a decision until he had reported.

Opposition Leader Pierre Trudeau told the Commons after Clark's announcement that the plan had been wrong in the first place and the outcome of the whole exercise had been to damage Canada's relations with Arab countries.

NDP leader Ed Broadbent said Clark's promise to move the embassy was irresponsible.

Two on yo-yo in mine shaft

ASHINGTON, England (UPI) — Safety engineers checking the emergency braking system on a 480-foot mineshaft elevator said they had no idea two miners were trapped inside during the bouncing tests.

"I never want to get back into a pit cage as long as I live," said Mark Hetherington, 20, who was bounced up and down inside the elevator for two hours during the weekend.

The elevator was raised to the surface and then sent into a free-fall four times to test the braking system before safety engineers realized the two men were inside.

"It was terrifying," said Hetherington, who was trapped along with John Scott, 40. "The force of each drop stretched the cable and the cage bounced up and down as if we were elastic."

Officials said the safety engineers apparently failed to receive a signal when the two men entered the elevator at the mine floor for their ascent.

"We are satisfied this unfortunate incident happened as a result of confusion over signaling," said a spokesman for the National Coal Board. "This was a case of human error and no disciplinary action is being taken."

Wolfe puts surplus at $188M

VANCOUVER (CP) — Increased revenues from tourism, timber sales and the sale of oil and natural gas produced a budgetary surplus of $188.6 million for the first half of this fiscal year, Finance Minister Evan Wolfe said today.

The surplus to Sept. 30 was $162.5 million more than originally forecast and $74.2 million greater than the surplus for the same period last fiscal year.

The government will be drawing on the surplus in the third quarter, Wolfe said, because expenditures in that period are expected to exceed revenues by $72.2 million.

He said he still believes there will be a balanced budget at the end of the fiscal year, March 31, 1980.

Wolfe said unexpected continued strength in the U.S. housing market has resulted in a strong demand for B.C. lumber. Revenue from from timber sales was $58.5 million above forecast.

Revenue from oil and gas permits and fees was $36.5 million above forecast as a result of increased interest in exploration. B.C. Petroleum Corp. profits were $32.2 million more than forecast.

The active tourist season was reflected in a 22.9-per-cent increase in revenues from the hotel and motel room tax, he said.

Capital investment and consumer spending also showed strong growth, and there was an 18.7-per-cent increase in revenue from the sales tax after figures were adjusted to take into account the drop to four per cent from five per cent April 1.

The increased revenue covered six-month losses reported by three Crown corporations: B.C. Rail reported a net loss of $45.9 million compared with a loss of $39.1 million last year; Ocean Falls Corp. lost $4.2 million compared with a deficit of $2.6 million last year and B.C. Hydro lost $13.7 million, half of last year's $27.7 million loss.

Wolfe said he had no apologies to make for the second-quarter surplus.

He said rather than hide them in a secret vault for the last four years, the government has appropriated all of its surpluses for useful projects such as increasing the homeowners' grant or expanding highway construction.

Another $800 million error in U.S. bookkeeping

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials of the U.S. Federal Reserve Board disclosed today that another $800-million error has been discovered in the country's money supply figures in addition to the $3-billion mistake discovered last week.

Representative Henry Reuss (Dem. Wis.), chairman of the House of Representatives banking committee, called the miscalculation of the money supply a "monumental goof" equivalent to a "monetary Three Mile Island."

"The past few weeks have been among the most chaotic in the financial markets since the Great Crash of 1929, 50 years ago," with much of the chaos resulting from the faulty money supply figures, Reuss said.

But two members of the board, appearing before the banking committee, tried to assure Reuss and other congressmen that the miscalculation was not their fault and did not influence the board's recent actions.

"This error was corrected before it could have any appreciable impact on the way we conduct monetary policy," said Charles Partee, one of the seven members of the Federal Reserve Board.

The latest error meant the money supply in recent weeks grew by $3.8 billion less than the board said it did. The rapid growth of the money supply during this period was the chief reason the board gave for its decision on Oct. 6 to raise interest rates in a effort to slow money growth.

But Board Vice-Chairman Frederick Schultz told the banking committee that even after discounting the errors, the money supply still expanded in early October at more than a 10-percent annual rate, a rate of growth that the board feels encourages inflation.

Schultz said the latest $800-million error, like the other $3-billion, was the result of mistakes in money reporting by the Manufacturers Hanover Bank in New York City and he did not rule

Puzzle stumps everybody

Game 4 of the Win The Island game in the Saturday Times was a mighty tough puzzle.

So tough, in fact, that the solution was impossible.

And all because of a missing circle. It seems six circles were provided for the "Mystery Island" when there should have been seven.

As a result, with apologies to all those frustrated puzzle solvers, Game 4 has been wiped out altogether and the contest has been extended for another week with a fresh puzzle this Saturday.

City fire cost $2M?

By DEREK SIDENIUS

City fire officials were today trying to determine the cause of a spectacular fire that gutted a 25,000-square-foot warehouse in James Bay Saturday night.

Damage from the fire, the largest in the Victoria area this year, is expected to run more than $1 million and could hit $2 million.

George Payne, general manager of McQuade's Ships Chandlers, the principle tenant of the building at 35 Erie Street, said today he would not have a loss figure until later in the day after staff have completed an inventory check.

He said the warehouse — a former bottling plant vacated in June by Goodwill Bottlers — was filled with stock that had been transferred from his company's smaller warehouse at 786 Fairview over the past month.

"We've spent most of the year getting organized for the move," he said. "We'd just got moved in and had everything working fine. The fire couldn't have hit at a worse time."

Payne said that contrary to earlier reports the fire will not result in any lay-offs.

The retail office at 1252 Wharf was not affected and, for the time being, the com-

Truscott case to be reviewed

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Joe Clark said today he will ask the justice department whether the goverment should or could reopen the murder conviction of Stephen Truscott.

Truscott, now 34, was only 14 when he was convicted of the murder and rape of 12-year-old Lynn Harper in Clinton, Ont.

A new book written by Bill Trent alleges there is new evidence available to show that Truscott was innocent of the crimes.

Strait lightning forces jet back to Vancouver

An Air Canada flight from Vancouver to Victoria had to turn back on the weekend after the plane was hit by lightning.

There were no injuries. The jolt knocked a metal panel off the plane, near the nose.

Flight 143, a stretch DC-8 with 106 passengers aboard, had left Vancouver at 10:55 p.m. Saturday night and was less than half way to Victoria when the incident occurred.

An Air Canada spokesman said a pilot uses his discretion after a lightning hit about whether to continue or return.

In this case, because he was closer to Vancouver, he decided to return and have the plane inspected.

Loss of the compressor panel was the only damage.

Lightning strikes are rare on the Victoria-Vancouver route, the spokesman said.

Essential radio ops returning

Contract negotiations between government and union representatives are scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. EST Tuesday in an effort to end the national dispute that has curtailed air traffic at many smaller airports.

About half of the 1,167 government-employed radio operators are designated by law during the legal strike to perform services considered essential to the safety and security of the public.

For a week, most of the designated operators at 142 airport and marine radio stations have performed only emergency service or have walked off the job.

The union spokesman said full essential services will be provided as of midnight. Regional strike co-ordinators got agreement from union members for the move after a weekend discussion between treasury board and union representatives.

In Toronto, Art Curtis, the union's Ontario regional chairman, said 54 airport radio stations were shut down and 78 operators received notices they will be suspended for a minimum three days on grounds they did not provide essential services.

The operators, without a contract since July, 1978, normally provide emergency communications, weather and safety reports, flight-planning services and man runway lights.

One Canadian woman in 6 living in poverty — report

TORONTO (CP) — One Canadian woman in six lives in poverty, says a recent report by the National Council on Welfare.

And most of these women are old, sick, single or heads of families living on welfare, it says.

The report says that since 1961, the number of Ontario mothers supporting children on social assistance has increased by more than 300 per cent because of the rapidly-rising divorce and desertion rate and the increasing difficulty single mothers have in finding work.

"The majority of Canadian women, whatever their background, are very vulnerable to becoming poor overnight," the report says.

"Because it is still taken for granted that women will assume the bulk of responsibility for raising the children and maintaining the home, they are improperly trained for paid jobs and are denied access to better positions with advancement opportunities."

Governments have kept welfare and family benefit payments close to the minimum wage level to provide an incentive to work — on maximum welfare benefits a single person receives $222 a month, two persons $374, and four persons $570 a month.

But these benefits often run about $1,000 below the Statistics Canada poverty level, established last year for a family of three.

When women try to support their families on a low income, the result is often hunger, the report says.

A Toronto woman who has raised eight children on mother's allowance over the last 12 years says: "Anywhere you find people on welfare at the end of the month, you'll figure hunger.

"Every dime I get has to do a quarter's work."

Bridge 'unsafe'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A construction crew working on the damaged Canadian National Railway bridge across Burrard Inlet walked off the job Sunday because the workers believed the structure was unsafe.

About 20 men, members of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, refused to work when they discovered a shim under the northeast leg of the bridge's north tower had come free. A shim is a metal wedge used to join larger pieces of iron.

CNR spokesman Al Menard said the workmen, employed by Canron Inc., feared the tower had moved overnight, dislodging the shim and making the tower unsafe.

He said Canron engineers inspected the structure Sunday and found no evidence the tower had moved or shifted.

The engineers will report their findings to the union today, but it is not known if the workers will return to the job.

The bridge was knocked out of service two weeks ago when a 25,000-ton Japanese freighter rammed into it while leaving the harbor in dense fog.

Crewman missing

In company with the destroyer-escorts HMCS Saskatchewan and HMCS Mackenzie, the Qu'Appelle had been in Pearl Harbor from Oct. 18 to 25 and was due to arrive in San Diego Nov. 2.

Taking part in an air search are a U.S. Coast Guard C130 Hercules search aircraft from the naval air station Barker's Point in Hawaii and a U.S. Orion anti-submarine aircraft.

Five die in fire

Canadian Press

Five members of one family were killed Sunday in a house fire in Powell River.

Police said the fire was started by a faulty heater. A pipe leading from an oil space heater caused a wall to heat up and ignite.

RCMP said the bodies of Carl Douglas Kingsbury, 36, his wife Margaret Rose, 33, and children Paul, 5, Laurette, 3, and Carl, 1, were found in one room of the house.

N-protesters mob Wall St.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hundreds of anti-nuclear demonstrators bottled up traffic for hours in the nation's most important financial district today, protesting against Wall Street's investments in nuclear energy.

But the day-long demonstration had virtually no effect on the operation of the New York Stock Exchange, though police arrested more than 600 demonstrators.

The exchange opened on schedule at 10 a.m. local time on the 50th anniversary of the Great Crash of '29. Trading was reported moderate.

There was a great cheer from the trading floor and employees tossed scraps of paper into the air as the stock exchange opened.

"Usually they cheer when it closes, but today they're cheering when it opened," a broker said.

The exchange's senior vice- president, James Fuller, said the demonstration had "no effect on our ability to open."

By early afternoon, police said about 500 people had been issued universal summonses for disorderly conduct and were released pending a court later appearance. Another 100 people were arrested and held for refusing to give their names or refusing to walk to a local police stationhouse.

Police took instant snapshots — for use in court — of many of those arrested.

Shortly after dawn, the demonstrators began assembling behind police barricades in the Wall Street area and sat down on sidewalks and in the streets in an attempt to bar the workers' entry to the exchange.

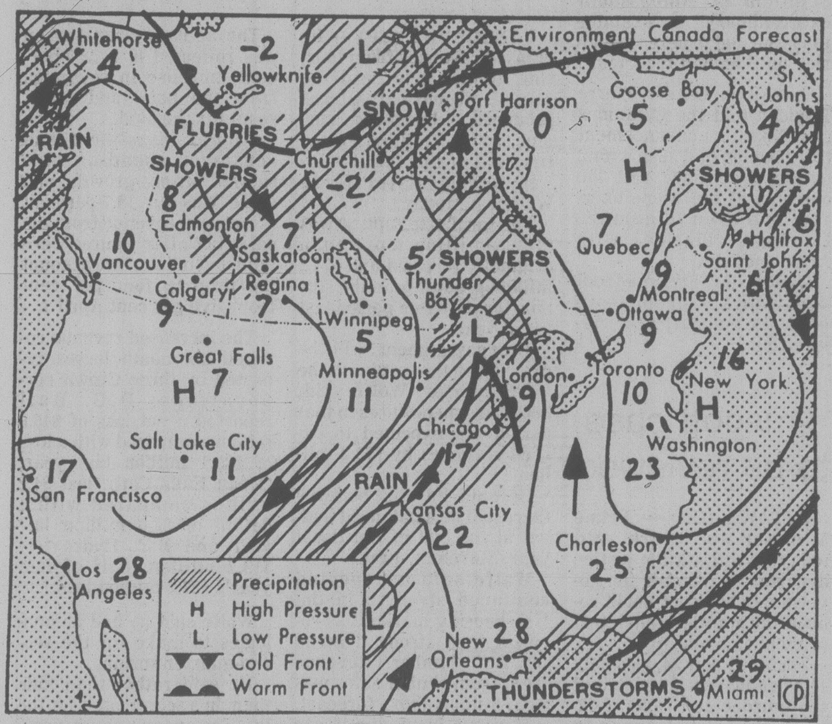

Map valid until noon Tuesday

A ridge of high pressure building over B.C. brought some clearing to most regions overnight. However, a storm brewing out over the Pacific will bring rain and blustery winds to coastal areas later today. The interior of the province should see a fair amount of sun except in the eastern sectors where a few showers will develop. The system offshore will move into the interior Tuesday accompanied by rain or showers. A westerly onshore flow behind the disturbance will maintain unsettled showery weather along the coast.

Products-cancer link

VANCOUVER (CP) — Many cancers can be prevented by removing industrial products from commercial markets, says a professor of biology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Jonathon King told the 20th International Science Education Symposium during the weekend that "until recently there has been very little focus on the idea of literally preventing the influence of cancer because there has been confusion of what causes cancer."

King said very few causes of cancer exist in the natural environment for humans.

"Most of the things that cause cancer are the product of some mining, manufacturing or chemical process."

Although the major features of cancer now are understood, the causes lie within commercial products, King said, but the pressure to maintain sales continues, so most manufacturers and industrialists resist pressures to have them removed.

And the same interests influence the funding — or lack of funding — for research grants into industrial carcinogens, he said.

He cited pressures placed on two directors of cancer research at the United States Cancer Institute "until they were forced to resign."

King said they were Dr. William Hummper, who in 1947 wanted to study possible links between the production of chromium and lung cancers in the workers and also look at suspected hazards in the Dupont chemical industries, and Dr. Umberto Saffiotti, who left the institute under similar circumstances in 1974.

King said the replacement of carcinogenic substances with safe ones is less expensive than industrialists maintain, and the technology is available today to identify hazardous substances before they are used by industry.

He discounted suggestions that removing these substances would throw us back into the pre-industrial stage, saying that in every case so far studied, a suitable alternative has been found.

Change could be accomplished by improved public education and stricter laws, King said.

Significant pact

VANCOUVER (CP) — The tentative settlement reached at Canada's largest molybdenum mine after an 8½-month strike will have far-reaching effects on British Columbia's mining industry if accepted, union leader Peter Cameron said Sunday.

"There are some very significant things in the settlement affecting the industry," especially strip mines, Cameron, regional vice-president of the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers, told a session of the Law Union of B.C.'s annual conference.

Union members vote Thursday on a tentative contract reached last week after talks involving Labor Minister Allan Williams and mediator Ken Albertini. Union officials are recommending acceptance.

Cameron said he could not go into specifics because details of the pact will not be released until after the membership vote.

An industrial inquiry commissioner had recommended a 24-per-cent increase in wages and benefits in the first year, and nine per cent in the second year of a two-year contract. Pre-strike base rate was $6.43 an hour.

The union sought a 44-per-cent increase in wages and benefits in a 26-month contract. The company countered with a 22.1-per-cent increase over two years.

Cameron said in a later interview he expects the majority of workers will return to Placer Development's Endako mine at Fraser Lake if the agreement is ratified.

It is expected Placer will lower its molybdenum price to $10 to $11 a pound, the current producer price, from its price of $20 a pound, set because of problems producing and moving limited quantities during the strike.

Molybdenum, used in steel alloys, is selling on the world spot market for about $30 a pound.

The new contender

It's a damaged dike over which Canadian regulation has had little chance of holding. Yet the debate over the rules to prevent the flooding of Canadian airwaves by American television is heightening with the advance of pay-TV.

According to the president of the CBC, Al Johnson, pay-TV should be allowed only if it contributes to more and better quality domestic programming. He argues that pay television, if and when it is sanctioned by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission, should be on a pay-for-the-program basis as opposed to paying for a channel.

Those arguments are fine in theory, but the reality is that pay television is already available in the United States. Thousands of Canadians along the international border either are in a position already or soon will be in a position, to subscribe to those services. And in the United States, pay by the program has been abandoned because viewers prefer to pay a flat fee for a channel.

By the time the CRTC has finished holding hearings on the concept of pay-TV, many viewers in the larger population centers along the border will already be watching American pay-TV.

There is no reason why Canadian companies should attempt to cash in on pay TV. But if the criterion for the existence of a pay-TV network is stringent Canadian content rules, then that network will face the same dilemma with which the free Canadian television networks are now trying to cope. Fulfilling the 60 per cent Canadian content rule is spreading programming funds so thin that quality shows are the exception rather than the rule.

In an age when cable, converters, dish antennas and soon pay TV have left the viewer with so many channel options, the only way for Canadian programming to survive is on the merit of the show. Viewer preference is beyond the scope of regulation.

Secretary of State David MacDonald made good sense when he indicated he would review Canadian content quotas with the view to allowing the networks to spend more money on fewer programs.

At the moment, he says, "a significant part of the Canadian content is met by the endless use of game shows that even the stations themselves say they would rather not do. But if they have to meet this obligation (Canadian content rule), that's what they are going to put on."

The minister should be willing to make similiar considerations when regulating pay TV. Like the Canadian networks, Canadian pay TV will be in for serious competition from American gloss. Although it should contribute to quality Canadian programming, it should not be regulated into a noncompetitive position.

Taken to the cleaners

It's been written that history has been shaped more with the little things affecting the disposition of rulers rather than big socio-economic-political events. Things like marriage, weather, indigestion.

The former solicitor-general, Warren Allmand tied himself to such esteemed company the other day. He got hung up over parliamentary rules that require male MPs to wear a necktie in the House of Commons.

Adorned with a Windsor knot and a turtleneck sweater he initiated what may be a significant movement in the equalization of the sexes. He looked across the floor at the External Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald's tieless neck and claimed that male MPs should have the same freedom.

Not until after his Commons appearance did Allmand say that he had been in such a panic to get to the House that he didn't have time to attire himself in the customary dress. A little investigation by reporters will no doubt show that he was out of clean shirts and the dry cleaner was late with his delivery.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

BB efficiently sneers at SB

The Policy Studies Institute of Britain (PSI) has only begun its monumental work. As reported in the London Economist, it recently found, after years of scientific investigation, that poor people walk more, and own fewer automobiles, than rich people — a staggering discovery. Now the QUANGOS are being studied and no doubt equally profound conclusions will soon appear.

If the reader is lamentably ignorant he or she may not know that QUANGO stands for "quasi-autonomous non-governmental organizations" which breed and proliferate like amoebae in Canada as well as Britain until nobody knows how many exist or for what purpose.

Modern governments have their own reliable method of examining such things with the use of computers, and the most familiar of official acronyms is GIGO, meaning "garbage in, garbage out." If you feed the computer the wrong figures it will give you the wrong answer, as the Ottawa computers usually do.

Electronic errors

Taking no more chances with accident-prone electronic gadgets, the Canadian government (as reported here exclusively) is planning a super-royal commission to ascertain, if possible, what royal commissions, task forces and other studies are under way — facts unknown at present.

The new, non-partisan tribunal will be called The Board of Inquiry into the Liberals' Ghastly Expenditures (BILGE) and a report is expected in three years, for debate in the next general election.

Every sensible organization has its sacred acronym — the OECD, the IMF, the OPEC, the GNP, the NSF, and the SNAFU, embracing all of them. By using brief initials these and other organizations reduce the cost of typing, printing and buying paper. Millions of dollars are thus saved annually, according to the latest figures of a sedulous American QUANGO.

It is true that the savings also reduce the number of productive jobs in government but additional inquiries throughout the world create far more employment than they destroy. Oddly enough, most governments (though not those in Canada) have yet to grasp this easy method of solving a grave social problem.

The QUANGO, the GIGO and the rest are vital elements in the growing efficiency of our age, or what the experts call the Economies of Scale (ES). Even the first-year student of economics understands that the bigger the organization the more efficient it must be. In the short-hand of the science, Big is Beautiful (BB).

It is distressing to remember that a very great economist and philosopher, the late E. F. Schumacher, attacked these obvious truths in his celebrated book, Small is Beautiful. He actually believed that the Economies of Scale had run riot, threatening not only the world's prosperity but its habitable environment, the whole human future.

Naturally the Schumacher heresy was dismissed with contempt by the brilliant minds that skilfully direct the affairs of mankind. And yet there may be something in it when you consider that the tiny nation of Switzerland, lacking native resources, is the richest per capita on earth.

Canada, with probably the largest resources and a vast geography, used to enjoy the second highest living standard and now is seventh on the list, lower down than such small nations as Denmark, Sweden and Norway (if you assume that life can be measured, like groceries and the GNP, in a computer).

On the other hand, the United States, with the world's largest economy and unequalled economies of scale, has found its productivity, or output per man-hour of work, decreasing, its competitive power seriously weakened, its business growth stagnant, its currency devalued, its inflation rate at 13 per cent plus.

Just conceivably Schumacher was right in thinking that individual effort, the humble genius of the common person and the craftsman who is proud of his work, might still have some value in a society of mass organization. Just conceivably people of flesh and blood are as important as statistics and even as interesting. A daring idea but just conceivable.

Efficient results

Nevertheless the Economies of Scale have been fully demonstrated by OPEC, for example. You will find them at any gas pump or, on a minor scale, in any big shopping centre where efficiency keeps prices falling and provides higher wages for check-out ladies than nurses earn in their inefficient profession.

It is in the automotive industry, however, that the Economies of Scale reach their perfection, making ever-cheaper cars, paying ever-increasing wages, and, in the case of the Chrysler Corporation, generously accepting government money to complete its success.

Clearly, Big is indeed Beautiful and Small is Ugly (SU). That is why the newly-formed rebel Organization to Halt Huge Organizations (OHHO) must be a failure from the start.

In its strange notion that size may not always guarantee efficiency, this wrong-headed group of theorists has established branches in all the largest American cities. It now possesses a bureaucracy of distinguished economists, with a growing secretariat and the most sophisticated computers. It is rapidly mopping up local unemployment and next year will nominate its own presidential candidate, on a promise of smaller government and, of course, the Economies of Scale.

OHHO may fail, dying of dropsy, but QUANGO and GIGO never.

Victoria Landmarks

Many of our familiar place names like Mount Douglas, Mount Tolmie, Gordon Head, Oak Bay, Shoal Bay, Clover Point, are on the Victoria District Official Map, 1858. Our Cadboro Bay is the Cadborough Bay of 1858. It was named by the Hudson's Bay Company's officers after the company's brigantine, Cadboro.

Holland Point, Ogden Point are shown in 1858. So is a public park, surrounding Beacon Hill and extending to that part of the waterfront by Finlayson Point.

Victoria Harbor, James Bay, Portage Inlet, Rock Bay and the Gorge are on the 1858 map which, in its righthand margin, has a numbered list of the land parcels, their acreage and their purchasers. Among these were James Douglas, John Work, Roderick Finlayson, William Fraser Tolmie, Joseph Despard Pemberton, Kenneth McKenzied — all of them part of our local history.

Hello suckers

Forty years ago when I was supporting a mild form of socialism and very actively engaged in helping to form the first government employees union in this country, I attended a lecture by Howard Scott, the Technocrat who was promoting his theory or doctrine of a system of government. The first words he spoke to his audience were "Hello, Suckers."

Has the time arrived for someone to say to the voting public "Hello, Suckers?" To make this point clear we must realize that the employer of the B.C. government employees is not Premier Bennett's Social Credit government but the public of the province.

Once more the pantomine of negotiations between the various components of the BCGEU and management representatives has been completed.

Apart from the eight per cent increase in salary many of them also receive an annual increment which is automatic and not a matter of negotiation.

As an example one group dependent on the year of service would receive an increment of either $142, $115, or $88 per month separate and apart from the negotiated increase, of the group that had the illegal strike) their basic salary is in excess of $24,000.00 per year.

All members of BCGEU also receive effective August 1, 1978, a 100 per cent paid B.C. Medical Plan coverage.

The employee is entitled to dental coverage which can be from 50 per cent to 100 per cent and in addition orthodontic services up to a maximum of $500.

To add a little topping to what I have on a previous occasion referred to as a "Dagwood Sandwich" let me quote Article 25 (25.04) of their agreement "effective Jan. 1, 1978, the employer shall provide a mutually acceptable group life plan with benefits equivalent ot twice the employee's annual salary with a $25,000 minimum; the employer shall pay 100 per cent of the premium on the $25,000 base.

These so called "fringe benefits" are a heavy drain on the public exchequer. When we hear of an organization such as the C.L.C. with whom most of organized labor is affiliated, taking issue with government at any suggestion that the budget for health and welfare will not meet demands; we must ask ourselves could part of the problem be organized labor unions.

It would be interesting to have an acturial report on the cost of these fringe benefits which are an avoidance of expenses which must be met by the general public.

In union and management negotiations it is most distressing that we see a lack of true interest and affection for the country. — Ken Burns, 401-640 Dallas Road.

U.N. support

It was on Oct. 24, 1945 that the United Nations organization was sufficiently ratified to begin existence. Its purpose, in addition to maintaining international peace, was to achieve international cooperation in solving international problems — economic, social, cultural and humanitarian, and promoting respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms for all. Now, just over 30 years later, we are impatient because these purposes have not been fully realized. Yet, in spite of armed conflicts which have risen and still persist, world conflict has been avoided and potential threats to international peace have been defused. Efforts toward disarmament have at least achieved the opening of new channels for negotiations and the strengthening of negotiating machinery. Important agreements have been reached banning military activity in Antarctica, nuclear weapons in outer space, nuclear tests in the atmosphere, transfer of nuclear weapons or placement of them in the seabed, and production of bacteriological weapons.

In our concern over the threat of nuclear war we have overlooked real progress made in dealing with other global problems. We are only dimly aware of international institutions regulating air transport and postal and other communications, control of epidemics, and promotion of economic, social and cultural development.

With the plight of refugees so vividly brought to our attention in these days, are we aware of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees established in 1950 by resolution of the General Assembly? The work of the High Commissioner provides food, clothing, shelter immunization and education, and without its ministrations most of the 'boat people' would have perished before leaving shore. We must be familiar, however, with the work of U.N.I.C.E.F., another United Nations agency, but do we realize that the International Year of the Child was proclaimed by the U.N. General Assembly?

In view of the magnitude of these programs and their achievements, it is evident that the United Nations is by no means a failure. We must realize that as the world becomes more and more a global community we need the United Nations and its institutions, and to realize they are instruments by which we can establish a common denominator for life in a crowded planet. The authority and effectiveness of the United Nations depend upon the collective will of the people and governments supporting it. The Secretary-General says the basic source of the United Nations' strength is world public opinion. It is our best and probably last hope — it deserves our wholehearted support. — Bruce A. Barr, 205-1188 Yates Street.

Poor planning

It was noteworthy to read in the Times Sept. 28, two letters on the subject of poor planning.

On the Labor Day weekend I decided to visit the Saanich Fair for the first time in several years. On approaching the grounds I was amazed to see the type of housing development which had been built right up to the fence of the fairgrounds. I have always considered the Saanich Fair to be a rural one, and I agree with Dr. P. K. Buxton that nothing could be more incongruous than such a development in this location.

Mrs. Daphne Temple refers to poor planning in building the aquatic complex (Crystal Pool) in Central Park. It seems significant that this decision was made amid a great deal of controversy ten years ago, and has been the object of criticism ever since that time. This would seem to point up the value of our elected representatives giving some consideration to public opinion in their deliberations. It is all very well to say that if we, the taxpayers, don't like what they do we can turn them out at the next election. However nothing can be done now to transfer that housing development to another location, or to remove the aquatic complex from Central Park and restore it to its former charm. Perhaps those running for municipal office in the forthcoming elections might keep this in mind.

Other examples of bad decision-making could be given, but one more is soon to be added to the list, namely, the central library. — H. R. Matthews, 1145 Victoria Avenue.

Too trusting

It is an unfortunate fact of life, that in politics, things are seldom what they appear. Little mention has been made in the regrettable "dirty tricks" affair that Jack Kelly apparently has returned whence he came. I understand he stated on the radio that he had worked on the election campaigns of Tommy Douglas and Dave Barrett, and now that he has resigned from the Social Credit caucus research staff he has retained Gary Lauk, the well known NDP member, as his lawyer. Surely there is enough coincidences here to start the intelligent reader thinking.

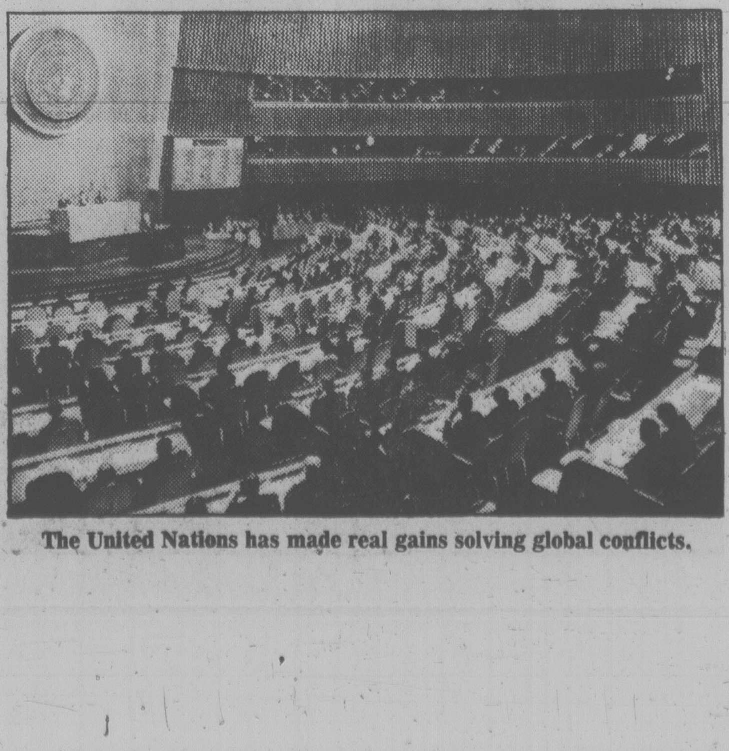
Of course the Social Credit has to shoulder the blame, but it appears their main fault was in being too trusting in their selection of employees, and in not insisting that a new higher code of ethics was necessary for all working for the Social Credit. — Alf Flett, 6216 Shoreline Drive, Nanaimo.

Just the beginning

"Parents' Day on Child Health: Preparing Your Child for a Health Care Experience", held on Sept. 29 was a success! But this couldn't have happened without your support. To the media, the agencies, C.R.D. hospital and health planning commission, the health care workers, the parents and most importantly, the children who participated — many thanks! Your interest and involvement was outstanding.

We hope that this will be just the beginning of promoting required changes in children's health care experiences. Organizing a Victoria chapter of the Association for the Care of Children in Hospitals is one way to promote these changes. For further information about the Association and a Victoria Chapter, or suggestions for action, write to: A.C.C.H., "Parents' Day on Child Health", we have the resources to help children in health care experiences. What is needed is a co-ordinated effort by all to make certain these resources are organized for and available to those who require them, when they need them.

The I.Y.C. Committee on Health thanks all who participated in our first Parents' Day on Child Health. We hope you will remain committed and involved in promoting these important aspects of children's development. — International Year of the Child Health Committee, Victoria.



The United Nations has made real gains solving global conflicts.

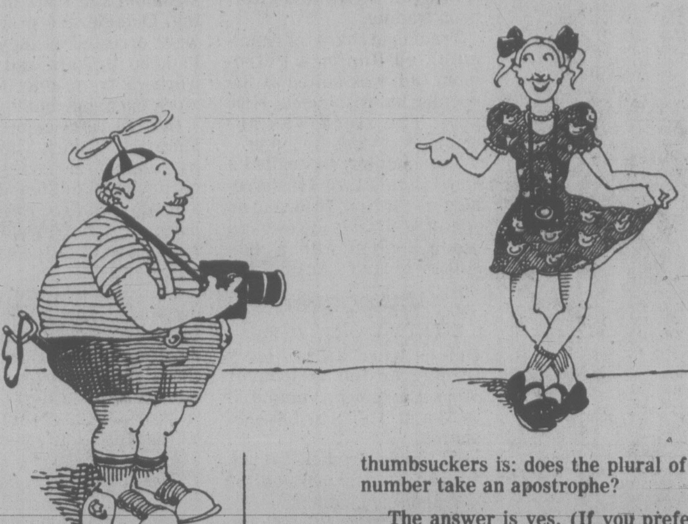
Goodbye girl



Appearing on a Houston television show, and fulminating about Leon Jaworski's cover-up of Koreagate, I noticed a good-looking blonde taking still photographs on the set.

In the course of plugging a novel, I mentioned that the heroine was also a girl photographer — "like the one you have right here."

After the show, an icily formal person with cameras around her neck asked: "If I were a man, would you call me a 'boy photographer'?"

Chagrined, but bearing it, I apologized. Although "girl" is not as pejorative as "boy" (the racist putdown of a black of any age), the word — once the embodiment of carefree femininity — has fallen on hard times. Young women sensitive to slights take "girl" as a slight, just as they do "blonde," an adjective turned by sexists into a noun, meaning a woman with hair of that color but also connoting allure or blowziness.

Although alerted to this sensitivity by the woman photographer — rather, the photographer who was a woman — I fell into sexist ways again in a column about the Chappaquiddick incident, referring to "the 'boiler-room girls' at the party."

A woman's voice came on the telephone the day the column appeared to say, "I am outraged." Asked to be more specific, she identified herself as one of the six young women at the party on what is often called "that fateful night," and she resented — as a sexist slur — being referred to as a "girl." As she put it, using the same example as I had heard on the TV set: "You don't talk about the men at that party as 'boys'."

Forgetting for a moment my primary role as a student of language, I invited her to recount the full story of what happened that fateful night. She declined — as she has these 10 long years — and pressed her feminist cause. I objected: didn't everybody say "boiler-room girls" in 1969, referring to the persons who man the telephones in a political campaign? "You could say 'girls' in 1969," she responded, "but not in 1979."

She has a point, to a point; women who are secretaries resent their bosses' saying, "Talk to my girl about that," especially when girlhood is long gone, and the self-description of a group of women as "the girls" seems to be on the wane.

Girls are getting younger. That is, the word is being used now to denote females of a lower age. "Young woman," which often used to be sternly admonitory — "Young woman, that's my hat you're sitting on" — is now the desired form of address to a maturing ex-girl whose address you'd like to have. "Don't refer to the fair sex or the weaker sex," writes resultful David Ewing in "Writing for Results." "Say women. Diminutive forms such as usherette are being ushered out in favor of just usher. And, of course, girls instead of women is a solid no-no."

The only place "girl" seems to be welcomed these days is in rock music, which refers to all women of all ages as either "milady" or "gurl." Rodgers and Hammerstein lyrics are passe: we will soon hear a lusty chorus roar "There Is Nothing Like a Young Woman" ("dame," like "broad," "chick" or "skirt" or "bird," is even further beyond the pale). A piquant Oriental singer will soon belt out "I Enjoy Being a Young Woman."

Use the word "girl" at your peril. The Working Girl, long harassed and patronized, has earned her way to linguistic equality; a sign of the changing times is that it is not possible to say that Heaven protects the Career Woman.

The Weighty 80s

As the decade of the Eighties approaches, we can be sure that pundits and panjandrums will pen such pieces as "Whither America in the 80s?" and "Through the 80's and Beyond." The big question that faces all of us in these end-of-the-decade thumbsuckers is: does the plural of a number take an apostrophe?

The answer is yes. (If you prefer: The answer is "yes.") We are not leaving the 1970s, we are leaving the 1970's — or if you like to abbreviate, as in the "spirit of '76," we are leaving the 70's. Not the '70s. (The apostrophe goes only before a single year, not a decade.)

Why? Some editors take umbrage at the apostrophe: Lizanne Poppens of The (Springfield, Ill.) State Journal-Register objects: "It is NOT 80's . . . In no way is '80s any kind of possessive (as 80's implies). Secondly, the only difference between the 1980s and '80s is the apostrophe, which correctly takes the place of the absent 19th century." (We're in the 20th century, but you get her meaning.)

I disagree. An apostrophe — from the Greek word meaning "turn away" — is a mark inserted when you turn away from using a letter, as in "spit 'n' image." Or it is a doo-hickey that makes a word possessive, as in "Copley's." Or it is used to form the plurals of numbers and letters, like "mind your p's and q's" (in learning to print, the "p" is often confused with the "q," its mirror image) and "dressed to the nine's" (possibly a reference to the nine Muses, or a corruption of "to the eyes.") Separate uses, different reasons — the use of an apostrophe does not imply a possessive outside its specific use as a possessor.

Dictionaries differ on decade endings, but most prefer the apostrophe — "How well I remember the 40's" — with the exception of decades that are parts of phrases, like "Gay Nineties" and "Roaring Twenties."

While on this subject, let me answer Karen Drew of Paducah, Ky., who has a son named Charles and wonders if she is "Charles' mother" or "Charles's mother." Dear Charley's Mother: You're "Charles's mother," because almost all names and words ending with s take an apostrophe as well as another s to form the possessive. When this rule causes you to trip over your tongue, for goodness' sake, break the rule.

Apostrophes have always been my Achilles' heel. Why not "Achilles's heel," like "Charles's mother"? Because classical names traditionally take an apostrophe only, without as s. That's an idiom. An idiom is language's way of telling logic: "Sorry, Charley, that's the way life is in the 80's."

Meta-fore!

Senator Howard Baker called President Carter's response to the Soviet combat brigade in Cuba "inadequate" and added; "In a toe-to-toe confrontation, we blinked."

No. Toes may be used metaphorically in testing the water, or in being alert, or even in a slugfest, but toes do not blink.

The phrase that the minority leader had in mind was "eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation," which blazed across the political sky in the Cuban missile crisis of 1962. The words used by Secretary of State Dean Rusk to ABC newsman John Scali were: "Remember, when you report this, that, eyeball to eyeball, they blinked first." The phrase was fixed in the lexicon by columnists Charles Bartlett and Stewart Alsop as "We're eyeball to eyeball and the other fellow just blinked."

The image is so well known it rates parody: columnist Joseph Kraft described an argument between Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan as "eyeball to eye patch."

Where did it come from? According to Gen. Harold Johnson, Army Chief of Staff in the mid-60's, the phrase originated in the military and is a contribution of black English. The 24th Infantry Regiment, before integration in the armed services, was all black; in November 1950, it bore the brunt of a counterattack in Korea. When General MacArthur's headquarters sent an inquiry to the 24th regiment — "Do you have contact with the enemy?" — the reply, widely reported at the time, was "We is eyeball to eyeball."

On U.S. side of border at Tijuana paths have been worn in brush by illegal immigrants

'The Vietnam of the Southwest'

By LOU CANNON
The Washington Post

SAN YSIDRO, Calif. — In the ugly racial undertones to the war in Vietnam the brown-skinned people were "gooks" or "slopes" or other words that conveyed a presumed inferiority.

Now, on a bewildering U.S.-Mexican border that is more heavily travelled than the Ho Chi Minh trail, the brown-skinned people are "conks" or "beaners" or "aliens." Again, the brownskins seem to be winning, and the losers don't like it.

How little some of them like it has been revealed in a San Diego indictment of four U.S. border patrolmen for allegedly violating the civil rights of illegal Mexican immigrants by beating and kicking them when they were helpless and unarmed after arrest.

It is the first such federal indictment in the 55-year history of the U.S. Border Patrol, and some civil rights attorneys here liken it to the first indictments of southern peace officers for mistreating blacks during the civil rights revolution of the '60s.

Mexican-American activists claim that the indictments show the very small tip of a very large iceberg that long has been hidden from public view.

From the Border Patrol point of view, the indictments have opened a window on a world of repeated futility and frustration in which hundreds and sometimes thousands of Mexicans are rounded up every night, only to be turned loose again the next morning.

The indictments, which charge specific acts of mistreatment plus conspiracy to commit these acts, give hints of a larger disorder, suggestive of vigilantism, within the Border Patrol.

One of the incidents related in the indictment involved an unidentified illegal immigrant, who, after his apprehension last July 3, supposedly made an obscene gesture at a border patrolman. He allegedly was taken to a pre-arranged place of punishment and struck sevveral times on the face.

Then the hand that made the offensive gesture allegedly was placed on the floorboard of a van and beaten repeatedly with a nightstick. The indictment quotes a patrolman who was transporting the Mexican to his place of punishment as explaining to a trainee:

"Sometimes we find it necessary to do things like this because the criminal justice system doesn't do anything about these . . . .

These indictments have not set well with the Border Patrol, an embattled and underpaid force whose morale, in the words of the attorney for one of the indicted patrolmen, "already was down around the shoelaces."

Patrol trainees who are to testify for the prosecution have been given special protection after one of them said his car was vandalized and the wife of another complained of being followed by a defendant. Michael H. Walsh, the outspoken U.S. attorney who brought the indictments, has won an early trial date of Nov. 13 in an effort to ensure that his witnesses are available and unharmed.

At the rank-and-file level, sympathy is with the indicted officers, not with those who are testifying against them. As in more formal wars, the men on the line tend to believe that they have been abandoned by superiors and countrymen who neither understand nor care about their problems.

In statistical terms alone, these problems seem almost beyond comprehension. The San Ysidro border is the most direct route to the lucrative job market in Los Angeles. Last year, in a 16-mile stretch of border extending eastward from the Pacific Ocean, the Border Patrol apprehended 322,214 people, slightly more than 40 per cent of the total arrests made along 2,000 miles of Mexican border. The number will be equal or greater this year. On some peak summer weekends, as many as 4,000 illegal immigrants are apprehended in a single night.

For the front-line troops, the San Ysidro border is a maze of fields, ditches, ramshackle homes and a broken border fence. This old fence gradually is being replaced by a new 10-foot chain-link fence the builder calls "a tennis court" that will be as easy to climb over as the old one.

In the centre of the sector, overlooking one of the world's busiest illegal border crossings, the homes and ditches give way to the scrub-covered Otay Mesa, a guerrilla's paradise of hills and gullies that remind Korean War veterans of the terrain around Inchon.

On a part of the Mesa known as the "loading docks," near the spot where the indicted border patrolmen supposedly punished their captives, the hills become a lunar landscape traversed by hundreds of foot trails. The trails carry a ceaseless traffic in which the humanity of the immigrants is submerged in countless numbers of brown faces.

In June the San Ysidro border became a war zone of nightly shootings and flying rocks. An undetermined number of Mexicans were killed or wounded by gunfire, some of it coming from the Mexican bandits or smugglers who were trying to divert the Border Patrol.

The situation became so explosive that U.S. officials, led by Walsh and Border Patrol sector chief Donald M. Cameron, appealed to Baja California Gov. Roberto de la Madrid for help. De la Madrid cooperated in a crackdown on smugglers and installation of an international hotline that has restored this border, at least temporarily, to a condition of tense normalcy.

It is doubtful, however, that any cooperation for any hotline can quiet the border for long. The reality of illegal Mexican immigration is expresssed by Cameron, the Border Patrol officer who is charged with stopping it.

"I see no change in the number of people who are going to enter the United States from Mexico," Cameron says. "This is an escape valve for them. If all of their people stayed in Mexico with the grinding poverty they've got down there and the unemployment, Mexico would face a violent situation, maybe a revolution . . . A Mexican is faced with two choices — commit a crime or come to the United States. Since most of them are basically honest, they come up here because we attract them. We've got the jobs."

Sharing similar assessments, some Border Patrolmen wonder, even as in Vietnam, what they are doing here in the first place. They become angry and frustrated at the unappreciated tedium of their work and even more angry when Chicano rights activists such as Herman Baca accuse patrolmen of brutally administering "the slave trade of Mexican immigration."

Baca refers to the San Ysidro border as "the Vietnam of the Southwest," and the reference is appropriate in the hopelessness of the experience, if not in casualties. Along the Mexican border, leftover technology from America's latest Asian war such as helicopters and infrared scopes are being employed in a conflict that seems to fully merit the Vietnam description of "no-win."

As in Vietnam, the armed troops here are captives of their nation's policy and technology. Outnumbered and unloved, it is difficult for them to look with kindliness on those who appear to be defeating them.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices edged up in light trading as chanting anti-nuclear demonstrators failed to halt trading on the 50th anniversary of one of the worst days of the 1929 stock market crash.

A cheer went up on the NYSE as the opening gong signalled the start of trading. Outside, 850 protestors were arrested as they tried to keep brokers and other workers from entering the stock exchange building.

Oct. 29, 1929 came to be known as "Black Tuesday" as volume reached a staggering 16.41 million shares. The day before the Dow average had plunged 38.33 points to set a record that still stands.

The demonstrators had demanded the NYSE stop trading in stocks related to nuclear energy. Some of those stocks moved lower, with J. Ray McDermott, the maker of the reactor at Three Mile Island, down ¼ to $20⅝ and General Public Utilities, its owner, down ⅛ to $8.

But Combustion Engineering, another nuclear equipment maker, rose ¾ to $45. Oil issues were strong whether or not they have large nuclear commitments. Exxon rose ⅝ to $56⅞ and Kerr-McGee rose ¼ to $56¾. Gulf rose ⅞ to $32⅞ and Mobil climbed 1⅛ to $47⅞.

The labor department reported that productivity of the U.S. workforce rose at an annual rate of 0.1 per cent in the third quarter after two quarters of steep declines.

'The Cadillac of snowblowers'

The Canadian Press

They call it the "Cadillac of snowblowers."

The giant yellow machine is mounted on a four-wheel drive tractor, has two diesel engines and gobbles up to 2,000 tons of snow an hour.

It's a Vohl snowblower, designed and manufactured by a family-run machine shop in St. Marc-des-Carrieres, 60 kilometres west of Quebec City.

From a modest beginning 20 years ago, Adrien Vohl et Fils Ltee is now supplying snowblowers which clear streets in Saskatoon, runways at Chicago's O'Hare airport and highways for several provincial road departments.

Six of the vehicles — costing about $90,000 a unit — recently moved out by truck to the City of Edmonton while another headed to the remote community of Eskimo Point in the Northwest Territories.

It's a long way from the early days when Adrien Vohl, a fourth-generation Quebecer of German origin, began repairing snowblowers for Richard Piche, a contractor from nearby Cap Sante.

As Bernard Vohl recalls, the snowblowers which Piche and other local road-clearing contractors owned kept breaking down.

"They'd arrive here with a box full of parts," recalls Vohl, one of Adrien's seven sons who all work in the business their late father founded in 1918 as a blacksmith's shop.

"A year later, my father told them that if they made 10 of the machines, he'd try and sell them. They built them. My father sold eight of them and that's how it began."

The arrangement between Adrien Vohl et Fils Ltee. and Richard Piche Inc. continues until this day with Vohl designing and manufacturing the machines and Piche handling sales and service from a modern building in Cap Sante.

Last year, Piche sold 56 snowblowers and did business of $6.5 million. This year, they hope to sell 80 and do business of $8 million with 30 of the machines going to customers in Quebec and the balance to the rest of Canada and the United States.

The partnership between the two companies appears to suit both sides well.

The Vohls are quiet, unassuming and happy to dedicate themselves to hard work and building a stronger and more flexible machine.

Piche president Marcel Papillon sits in his modern carpeted office with a well-stocked bar and speaks proudly of "the guerrilla tactics" he and his partners have used in capturing U.S. markets.

The first experience was in 1977 when Northern New York State was blanketed with a storm which dumped up to 60 inches (150 centimetres) fo snow over four days.

Conventional snow removal equipment wasn't working so the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers called in Piche.

With two Vohl snowblowers and a crew of six men, Daniel Piche headed 400 kilometres by road to Watertown, N.Y., and worked non-stop opening up roads for the army.

It was worth a fortune in publicity, says Piche, especially since Vohl's major competitor, SMI (Snowmaster Industries) has its U.S. base in Watertown.

"The first road we were asked to clear SMI had given up on," says Piche.

Results of the operation meant sales to municipal and county governments from Buffalo to Long Island and a string of five dealers across the state.

Piche repeated the stunt last year, sending a crew and two blowers to Chicago after that city's paralysing storm.

"We went there at our own costs (a 25-hour trip) and agreed to work for them for 24 hours for free."

The city was so pleased it kept them on and bought the two blowers. A third has been sold this fall for use at O'Hare airport which the city runs.

Papillon sees a growing market for the machines because "everyone has snow" and government and business are less willing than they once were to close down their operations when a snowstorm hits.

But why spend $20,000 more on a Vohl snowblower than on a truck-mounted, gasoline-powered machine?

"On paper, it's not apparent why you should pay more for a Vohl, but in a snowbank it becomes quickly evident," says Daniel Piche.

First, there's the tractor, imported from County Commercial Cars Ltd. of Fleet, England. It's a modified Ford diesel with 100-per-cent traction.

"That means you can have three wheels stuck and one on solid ground and the tractor will make its way out," says Piche.

Then there are the four giant tires which give the machine twice the traction. And the two diesel engines — one to power the tractor and the other to power the blower itself — are more reliable in the damp and the cold than gasoline engines.

The Vohls are also proud of exclusive features such as a telescopic chute for directing snow into awaiting trucks and patented steering vanes on each side of the machine which permit the operator to manoeuvre around utility poles without being forced to back up.

The Vohls use only the toughest of materials, including 14-gauge steel on the roof of the cab.

Parts are made in the shop by a staff of 68, some of whom have been working for the Vohls for 30 or 35 years.

In the fall, three units are assembled a week, but production can easily be increased to six because of an ample supply of parts produced in the spring and summer.

Soviets seek quality

MOSCOW (AP) — After years of pouring men and metal into an all-out race to produce more than the West, Soviet industry has reached a point where the quality of its goods may eventually matter more than the quantity.

Soviet economists say some real progress may be on the way, even though the industrial growth rate is slipping. The growth rate is expected to reach about 4.2 per cent this year, compared to about 10 per cent one decade ago.

Soviet analysts argue that the sliding growth rate is an encouraging sign, showing that the economy has reached the point where it already turns out most of the products the country needs. They now foresee a tradeoff of further growth for improved quality of products.

"There are plenty of Soviet shoes in the shoe stores now," one Soviet specialist said recently in a private talk. "Now, it's more a question of turning out shoes that people will actually buy."

Western economists are less complacent over the falling growth rate, claiming that the Kremlin still wants to increase production but doesn't know mow.

They argue that traditional Soviet methods of increasing output — more metal, more men, more worker bonuses and more pep rallies — are not performing the way the need to, and few alternatives are available.

Regardless of the reason for the declining growth, Soviet official publications have expressed no alarm. Instead, they have concentrated increasingly on the need for more efficiency in existing factories and better quality of output.

Depending on how seriously these appeals are taken, the country could eventually see a decline in shoddy goods, such as light bulbs that explode when switched on, shoes whose heels fall off, brand-new items marred by scratches and dents and building materials that seem to age overnight.

Soviet economists say the quality of production is a key concern of a major economic resolution passed three months ago by the national leadership. On the basis of this resolution, factory successes and worker bonuses are to depend as much on the quality of goods as the quantity.

Coffee holding women back

Women should stop making the coffee and acting as secretaries if they want to get ahead in politics or business, a University of Victoria conference was told on the weekend.

"Politics and business are the last great male preserves," said Doris Anderson, president of the Canadian Advisory Council on the Status of Women.

And, to change this situation, women have to move away from certain traditional female roles.

"I think if women in all political parties refused to brew another pot of coffee, or pick up a knife to butter sandwiches, or a pencil to take notes, women would be a lot better off."

This strike against the traditional role should continue at least until women form half the House of Commons, she said.

The former Chatelaine editor was the keynote speaker at a conference on Women and Political Participation.

She said the idea that women are better than men at making coffee or taking notes was a myth.

Things will only change when they refuse to do these menial chores.

Mrs. Anderson said, however, that women will continue to be hampered by traditional roles in certain ways.

For example, the most attractive political candidate is a young person with a good track record of successful experiences.

Young women often have family obligations that prevent them from running. Young men are not hindered to the same degree.

And, after getting elected, a woman traditionally has a second handicap. While a male politician can count on his wife to act as hostess but stay well in the background, a woman seldom can use her husband in the same role.

Husbands of politicians cannot play an effective background role.

"That's why many successful women politicians have been either single or widows of politicians."

The most optimistic development for women in politics, she said, is the increase in the number of females going into law and business administration, two feeder fields for future politicians.

This will increase the number of female candidates and, as a result, the number of female elected members.

Home on range a battle of words

Jim Stewart wants to subdivide

KELOWNA (CP) — Okanagan Valley ranchers and politicians are embroiled in a war of words about homes on the range.

The ranchers want to subdivide what they say is unneeded cattle land into 10- and 20-acre lots. Opponents say the minimum size for the so-called ranchettes should be 160 acres or a quarter section.

Millions of dollars are at stake and regional district members are evenly divided on the issue. There is a likelihood the question won't be resolved until after next month's civic elections.

Ranchers who want to subdivide rangeland see it as a natural progression. As more people move into the Okanagan, cattle are moved out, usually to the rangeland of the Cariboo and Chilcotin.

Opponents say the rangeland must be saved from developers and every acre is important. About 22,000 acres of privately-owned rangeland are at stake.

The landowners want to market the rangeland in 10-acre lots where there is a water supply and 20-acre lots where there is no water.

Developer Tom Capozzi says he is trying to provide alternatives to city living. About $75,000 will provide a buyer with a place to raise horses and other animals.

"We are looking at ranchettes on which people can raise their own vegetables, raise their own meat — like a couple of pigs. We are talking about getting back to some old-fashioned values, which seem to interest more and more people."

Jim Stewart, president of Kelowna Ranches, says people should have a chance to move to a log cabin in the hills.

"Historically, cattle ranching comes in when the land is cheap and unpopulated. As people come in, the cattle move back and eventually they will go to other areas where the same pattern will take place."

Trans Mountain asked to join Northern Tier

VANCOUVER (CP) — Trans Mountain Pipeline Ltd. of Vancouver has been asked to consider joining in some of the work on the all-American Northern Tier pipeline project, should Northern Tier win the battle to transport Alaskan oil to the United States Midwest.

A meeting has been arranged between Trans Mountain president Ken Hall and Northern Tier officials, but a date has not been confirmed, a Northern Tier spokesman said.

"If Northern Tier is given permits to build the pipeline, then Trans Mountain could be involved in servicing the four Puget Sound refineries," said Jim Hodge, a Northern Tier vice-president.

Hodge said a hook-up with four existing Puget Sound refineries now is an important part of the Northern Tier proposal which calls for expanded oil port facilities at Port Angeles with a pipeline to the Midwest.

"They can be serviced through the existing Trans Mountain pipeline," Hodge said. "It would require the construction of about a 20-mile spur line to hook it up."

Hall confirmed that he will meet with Northern Tier officials, but he would not elaborate on the topics to be discussed.

The Trans Mountain proposal, now the subject of National Energy Board hearings here, calls for an oil port at Low Point, just west of Port Angeles, with a pipeline across Puget Sound, into British Columbia and on to Edmonton from where the oil would be piped south to the U.S.

The $1.6-billion Northern Tier project has been recommended by U.S. Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, provided it can get financing within a year. U.S. President Jimmy Carter is to decide by Dec. 6 which project he prefers.

Just water on Bennett land

KELOWNA (CP) — Uranium exploration has finished on the Bennett family ranch near here, but the only thing discovered was water.

The exploration on the ranch owned by the families of Premier Bill Bennett and his brother Russell was disclosed by Union Oil Co. of Canada Ltd. at the provincial royal commission into uranium mining.

He had said that even if uranium was found on the ranch "probably nothing would happen because although you can stake it, you cannot mine without an agreement."

Russell Bennett has said he could not stop the exploration because the two families did not own the mineral rights on the land. Under provincial law, holders of mineral rights are not required to obtain permission to do exploratory work from the owners of the land.

Hair holds key?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver hairdresser says the hair color on the corpse of a former University of B.C. English instructor, whose badly-decomposed body was found beside a highway in Switzerland in March, could hold the key to the woman's death.

The nude body of Betty Joe Belshaw, 58, was found trussed in plastic bags. Swiss police, who spent a few days in Vancouver last month questioning friends and relatives of the dead woman, say they have few leads.

Mrs. Belshaw, 58, was on an academic sabbatical in Paris and Switzerland with her husband, Cyril, when she disappeared in January. Her husband said they made a date for lunch one afternoon, but she never showed up.

Lawrence Iwasaki, Mrs. Belshaw's hairdresser, says the woman's strict attention to her hair could produce some leads on her whereabouts between the time was last seen and the time her body was found.

"Her natural hair was white but she had it tinted brownish-red every three weeks," Iwasaki said.

Murder-suicide

KASLO (CP) — A man and two women are dead after an apparent double murder-suicide in Ainsworth Hot Springs near this West Kootenay community.

RCMP identified the dead as Velta Florence Hall, 52, and Stella Robertson, 50, both of Ainsworth, and Douglas MacDonald Fraser, 56, of Kaslo.

A police spokesman said the bodies were discovered early Friday night in a rooming house and that all three persons died of gunshot wounds.

Body found

CACHE CREEK (CP) — The body of a 16-year-old youth was found early Saturday on Highway 97 about 10 kilometres north of here.

RCMP identified the youth as Dale Stephen Morgan of the Bonaparte Indian reserve. Police have not determined the cause of death.

Hunter killed

DELTA (CP) — A 36-year-old Burnaby man was killed when his gun discharged accidentally while he was hunting on a dike in this community just south of Vancouver.

Police identified the man as Vincenzo Reale.

Truck kills boy

MATSQUI (CP) — A four-year-old boy died when he was run over by a municipal garbage truck in this Fraser Valley community.

Police said the boy, whose name has not been released, was playing near his home when the accident occurred.

Warehouse ruined by fire

pany will continue to operate its wholesale division out of the Fairview warehouse, he said.

A nearby resident spotted the fire at 11:22 p.m. Saturday and turned in the alarm.

Deputy chief Mike Heppell said the blaze was reported as a roof fire and only equipment from the number two hall at Oswego and Superior was dispatched.

However, he said, as the firemen were heading to the scene they saw a glow in the sky and realized they had a major blaze on their hands.

Accordingly crews from the main hall were sent out and a call was put in for a pumper truck from Oak Bay and an aerial truck from Esquimalt. All told 28 firemen attended.

Heppell said when firemen first arrived the warehouse was totally engulfed. Flames soared 50 to 60 feet above the tar and gravel roof.

There were numerous explosions as highly volatile materials including epoxy resins, solvents, and paints stored inside caught fire.

Heppell said several marine distress flares were ignited and he heard at least one propone tank "go off like a cannon."

The heat was so intense overhead Hydro lines were burned and brought down.

A stiff wind from the south came up mid-way through the firemen's 3½-hour battle to extinguish the blaze.

Sparks and cinders were sent flying and one landed on a roof of a house on St. Lawrence Street causing a small fire which was quickly put out.

Heppell said the main blaze attracted several hundred on-lookers. Some, he said, were dressed in Halloween costumes. They had obviously come from parties in the area to watch the spectacle.

A police spokesman said some fights broke out and one person was charged with assaulting a police officer and obstructing emergency crews after he refused to move from the danger area.

Everything inside the building was destroyed including two trucks and a fork lift truck owned by MacQuade's and three vehicles owned by Canpar, a division of Canadian Pacific Express, which had a small office in the building.

The Canpar trucks were believed to have been loaded with freight but no estimate of the loss was available.

Heppell said a preliminary investigation indicates the fire started near one of the parked trucks in the middle of the warehouse.

He said that judging by the char marks on the laminated beams of the warehouse, the fire had likely been burning a good hour before it was detected.

Payne said that to his knowledge none of his staff had used the building that day and Heppell said there was no indication of a break-in as all doors were locked shut when firemen arrived.

Payne said his company's loss was fully insured.

In another fire in the city Sunday about $20,000 damage was done to a second-storey bedroom, roof and attic of a house at 130 Linden.

Heppell said that fire, reported at 9:19 p.m., was caused by careless smoking.

The house is owned by Rodney Webster.

Fail-safe suicide guide planned

LONDON (UPI) — A society that believes in voluntary mercy killing has voted overwhelmingly to break the law and publish a guide telling the terminally ill how they can commit suicide.

In the face of opposition of the British Medical Association and churches, the Voluntary Euthanasia Society at its annual meeting at the weekend decided by a vote of 115 to 11 to go ahead.

To prevent the pamphlet from being used by the emotionally disturbed, the society said its distribution would be limited to those who had been members for at least three months.

The pamphlet will list drugs that may be used and their effects. There will also be fail-safe systems involving two suicide methods in case one fails.

The society admitted publication of the pamphlet would be illegal but said prosecution was unlikely under the 1961 Suicide Act, which provides for prison sentences of up to 14 years.

out that additional errors might be found.

"I cannot guarantee that there will not be further revisions from this bank," he said, explaining that Manufacturers Hanover is experiencing problems with a new reporting system.

Growth of the money supply is considered important as it provides the fuel on which inflation can thrive if money growth is too rapid. The board influences money growth by depositing or withdrawing money from the banking system.

Reuss claimed that the miscalculation has had serious repercussions on financial markets, noting that the Dow Jones industrial average has dropped 90 points since Oct. 5 and the bond market also has plummeted.

"Now we find out that much of that chaos was completely unjustified," Reuss said, declaring that "financial people panicked" when they saw the erroneous money supply report.

Woman's case to rights body

EDMONTON (CP) — A Camrose, Alta., woman who says she was denied entry to a university course because she was a non-native, has taken her case before the Alberta human rights commission.

It is thought to be the first case of reverse-discrimination put before the commission and chairman Max Wyman has compared it to the landmark Bakke case in the United States.

Allan Bakke, a Vietnam War veteran, applied to a California medical school and was refused because the school had a racial quota system, even though his marks were higher than some blacks admitted.

The case went before the U.S. Supreme Court, which ruled such quotas as unacceptable reverse discrimination.

The Alberta woman, Marlene Bloedel, says she was denied entry in a first-year business course the University of Calgary offered through Maskwachees College on the Hobbema Indian reserve. She claims students with poorer academic qualifications were accepted.

Wyman says if the case cannot be settled through the commission it may end up in the courts.

The Maskwachees programs, like the U.S. quota system for minorities, were developed to help members of disadvantaged racial minorities get a university education.

Mrs. Bloedel, 27, and a divorced mother of three, said when she applied to get into the course Prof. Evelyn Eyman-Moore, director of native studies, told her she would not be accepted because she was a non-native.

After complaining, she received a letter from the University of Calgary saying she had been rejected because of her Grade 12 marks. But she said Maskwachees officials told her some native students accepted in the program had less education than she did.

Ironically, Mrs. Bloedel's grandmother was part Maskwachees Cree and an official suggested she reapply, including this in her application.

The Great Pumpkin Run is one way to get a head start on Halloween, as these youngsters at Margaret Jenkins school demonstrate. Each student was given a paper pumpkin with his or her name on it. Ghosts, goblins will be out so be extra careful

Bonfires will burn all over Greater Victoria Wednesday to scare off the ghouls, ghosties and witches.

Halloween, or All Hallows as it was known in bygone days, will be celebrated by thousands of children at organized bonfires in most municipalities.

The Victoria West Community Development Association will hold its bonfire at Victoria West Park where there will be a costume contest at 7 p.m., plus refreshments for children.

At Oak Bay's Firemen's Park, the fire will be lit at 6 p.m. There will be a fancy dress parade, prizes and hot dogs and pop will be served.

The Esquimalt Lions Club will host a party at Kinsmen Gorge Park from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Saanich police and fire officials are unaware of any plans for organized celebrations in the municipality, but expect plenty of private parties.

The Sidney fun starts at 4 p.m. at Sanscha Hall where a costume party will be held for children.

It will be followed by a bonfire and fireworks at Tulista Park at 6 p.m. and hot dogs and coffee will be served.

The North Saanich fire department will hold its bonfire at 6 p.m. in a field at the corner of Wains and West Saanich roads.

The Central Saanich Lions Club will also hold a bonfire in a field south of Bolsters Garage at the corner of Wallace and West Saanich.

Meanwhile, police advise trick-or-treating youngsters to wear light-colored clothing — or something bright so they can be seen by motorists.

In addition, youngsters should not wear any kind of mask which hampers their vision. Police and safety officials say parents or a responsible older child should accompany toddlers.

They also urge parents to check Halloween handouts carefully.

In 1978 there were two complaints from Victoria West about apples being handed out with needles hidden inside.

Mayoralties up for grabs

Three races for mayor will be the main events of the Nov. 17 civic elections in the Victoria core municipalities.

In Victoria, three alderman are slugging it out in an evenly-matched contest — Murray Glazier, John Hayes and Bill Tindall.

Saanich's mayoralty race will see incumbent Mel Couvelier ranked against outsider Ernest McGregor, a retired brigadier-general.

Oak Bay is another area where the elections seem to have created little interest. Mayor Brian Smith is retiring this year to devote all his time to his other official job as Oak Bay MLA.

Only two candidates are jousting for his job in a quiet campaign — lawyer and ex-alderman John Goult and engineer Doug Watts, an incumbent alderman.

Calgary wins over Vancouver in bid for '88 Winter Games

MONTREAL — Calgary was picked over Vancouver as the Canadian Olympic Committee choice for the 1988 Winter Olympics, Sunday, and Vancouver mayor Jack Volrich, who headed the Vancouver delegation, called it a great disappointment.

Calgary's bid was worth $217 million compared to what was billed as Vancouver's "athlete oriented" $80 million proposal.

Don Hamilton, chairman of the Vancouver Winter Olympics Committee, explained it this way:

"The COA went for the bricks and mortar approach. The philosophical difference was that Calgary proposed a large-budget Olympics that involves a great deal of building and monuments.

"Ours was a low-budget Olympics, involving the athletes. Technically, the submissions were identical. I think the final factor was financial."

Hamilton then complimented Calgary by saying: "If Calgary is in a position to being the 1988 Winter Olympics to Canada, we must applaud that."

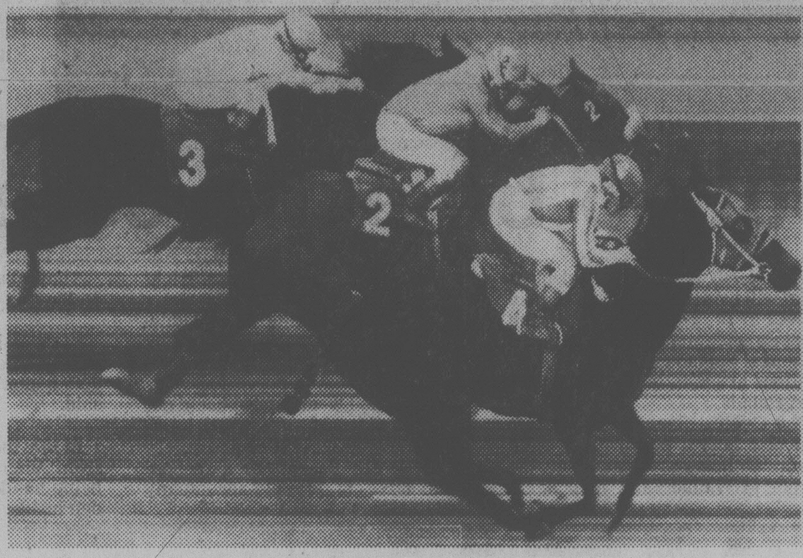
Volrich suggested that the COA might have a more difficult time selling Calgary to the International Olympic Committee than Vancouver, since local facilities are internationally known through an unsuccessful bid for the 1976 Winter Games.

It was the fifth time Calgary had bid for the Winter Olympics but the first without Banff as a partner.

Volrich also said that Vancouver will be attempting to attract as many international events to Vancouver as possible, including the 1988 Olympic trials.

The IOC decision will be made in 1981. So far, Switzerland, Germany, Sweden, Chile, Japan and Korea have shown interest in mounting bids for the 1988 Games.

Power Cell outlasts Times Handicap rivals



Power Cell wins photo decision in Sandown feature

By BILL WALKER

A new threat for major honors in the Capital City Turf Club's fall thoroughbred program appeared on the scene at Sandown Park Saturday.

Power Cell, a three-year-old gelding owned (for the time being, at least) by Drs. F.W. Arber and F. Spohn of Vancouver, captured the Times Handicap at 6½ furlongs in a three-horse photo finish with the six-year-old Lord Hubert and Never Charges Jr.

Power Cell came from off the pace set by Never Charges Jr. and In Strong Hands to edge the almost equally as fast closing Lord Hubert, winner of last week's Colonist Handicap, by a head. The favored Never Charges Jr. was another head back.

Trained by Don Morison and ridden by Andy Smith, Power Cell ran the distance in 1:20, fastest time of the meeting, and returned $5.50, $2.90 and $2.40.

Morison said he planned to return with Power Cell for the Vancouver Island Derby next Saturday "if they don't put too much weight on him."

Power Cell's sale is believed imminent and may already have taken place since there was some confusion as to his ownership before and after the race.

Power Cell originally was listed in the program as being owned by the Jawl Bros. of Victoria, but this was corrected before race time. Still, Power Cell ran in the Jawl Bros. colors and some of the Jawls appeared in victory picture. After the race it was suggested that a sale had indeed taken place. But this was not confirmed and Morison said Arber and Spohn were still the principal owners.

Power Cell's victory was his sixth since coming under Morison's direction in June. Two of the victories were at Longacres, the others at Exhibition Park and all six were in sprints. Only once in his last 11 starts has Power Cell been off the board. He has won more than $21,000 so far this year.

Wagering on the Times Handicap was a single-race record for the meeting, the crowd was 2,876, also a new high, while the mutuel handle of $210,358 was also a record for the year at Sandown.

Smith rode two winners as did Gary Melanson. Smith was up on the heavily-favored Gallant Purchase ($3.80) in the seventh, an Invitational Handicap at one mile for three-year olds, while Melanson scored with Shannon Lia ($5.70) in the fourth and Charlies Capri ($6.80), his second win of the meeting, in the the 10th.

Barbie Baby ($8.40) also won her second, an Invitational Handicap for fillies and mares over 6½ furlongs in the good time of 1:20.2.

Defending champion Mark Walker leads the jockeys with nine wins, but the field is closing in. Garth Carter, the 1975 champion, has eight, Smith seven and Chad Hoverson six.

It was just like a dream for excited Nordique fans

By Canadian Press

Sunday night was another of those rare occassions when a dream comes true.

It brought back 12-year-old memories of how members of a young, outclassed Canadian national hockey team reached into their hearts and beat a superb Soviet national team in Winnipeg.

It brought back memories of seven years ago when a group of older National Hockey League players reached into their hearts to come from behind and win the first NHL-Soviet series.

This time the "bad guys" were the NHL's powerful Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens — but the atmosphere was the same.

And for about 12,000 screaming Quebec City fans, their dream came true.

The Nordiques beat the Canadiens 5-4 in Montreal's first visit to the Quebec City Colisee.

"This is my greatest thrill in eight years of professional hockey," said Nordiques' coach Jacques Demer. "Nothing beats this victory. We had a great team effort.

"An expansion club has never played as well as we did tonight."

Two other expansion clubs also did almost as well. Hartford Whalers tied New York Rangers 2-2 and Winnipeg Jets tied St. Louis Blues 2-2. In other games Sunday, Buffalo Sabres beat Colorado Rockies 4-2, Philadelphia Flyers trimmed Detroit Red Wings 5-4, Boston Bruins beat Chicago Black Hawks 4-1 and Washington Capitals defeated Edmonton Oilers 6-4.

On Saturday, Buffalo beat Quebec 3-0, Minnesota defeated the Rangers 7-2, New York Islanders downed Chicago 6-4, Atlanta shut out St. Louis 3-0, Vancouver Canucks tripped Washington 5-3, Montreal edged Detroit 3-2 and Los Angeles Kings beat Toronto Maple Leafs 7-5.

Riochard Leduc gave Quebec a 1-0 first-period lead. Pierre Mondou and Steve Shutt put Montreal ahead 2-1 in the second but Real Cloutier tied the score and Dale Hoganson evened the count again at 3-3 after Doug Risebrough again sent Canadiens ahead.

Pierre Plante put Quebec in front with his first goal of the season in the third period and Jamie Hislop gave Quebec a 5-3 lead.

Nordiques' goalie Michel Dion held off the Canadiens until Mario Tremblay scored with 1:03 remaining.

Demers and his players gave much of the credit to the Quebec fans.

"They inspired us to go out and get two goals in the third period," Demers said. "They were with us all the way."

Rolf Edberg and Tom Rowe scored 66 seconds apart midway through the third period to lead Washington past Edmonton.

Winnipeg got goals from Willy Lindstrom and Peter Sullivan for the Jets' first tie of the season. Bernie Federko and Rick Lapointe scored for St. Louis.

Ron Duguay and Ulf Nilsson gave Rangers a 2-0 lead but Al Sims and Jordy Douglas gave Hartford its fourth tie in seven road games.

Delesalle heads gymnastic trials

TORONTO — Veteran Philip Delesalle and youngster Elfi Schlegel will lead the Canadian contingent into December's world gymnastics championship at Fort Worth and Dallas, Tex.

Delesalle of Victoria captured the men's overall title at the third Canadian gymnastics trial during the weekend, while 15-year-old Schlegel of Toronto took the women's title.

The 21-year-old Delesalle finished the two-day competition with 112.90 points. Warren Long was second with 110.85 Montreal's Jean Choquette finished third with 110.

Schlegel won the women's title with 74.50 points. Diana Carnegie of Toronto came second with 73.95 and Shannon Fleming of Toronto was third with 73.05.

Delesalle, Long and Choquette will be joined by Danny Gaudet of Toronto, Pierre Clavel of Montreal, Marc Eprecht of Toronto and Marty Sharpe, also of Toronto, as the men's team.

The women's team will comprise Schlegel, Carnegie, Carmen Alie of Montreal, Ellen Stewart of Toronto, Fleming, Kathy McMorrow of Toronto and Patti Jo Knorr of Cambridge, Ont.

Noticeably missing from the women's list is No. 1 ranked Monica Goermann of Winnipeg who is suffering a chipped ankle bone.

The world competition serves a second purpose in also deciding which countries will complete in the 1980 Summer Olympics. Only the top 12 ranked countries will be invited to Moscow.

Lions give ground to 'Rider Pride'

By The Canadian Press

A two-week promotion based on the slogan "Rider Pride" paid off with the best performance of the season by the Saskatchewan Roughriders Sunday.

The Riders scored their second win of the season with a 26-12 victory over the B.C. Lions and it came before a record home crowd of 28,012 at Taylor Field.

Cornerback Frank Dark intercepted a Joe Paopao pass and returned it 100 yards for a TD to give Saskatchewan an early lead and the Roughriders were never in trouble.

The defeat means a third-place finish for the Lions in the Western Conference.

In other games, Edmonton Eskimos defeated Winnipeg Blue Bombers 19-11 to cinch first place, Calgary Stampeders whipped Toronto Argonuats 28-12 to knock the Argos out of an EFC playoff berth and, on Saturday, Montreal Alouettes downed Ottawa Rough Riders 24-8.

Reg Boudreau, filling in for injured Bob Macoritti, booted four field goals while wide receiver Joey Walters hauled in an eight-yard TD pass from quarterback Danny Sanders for the other Saskatchewan major.

Quarterback Mike Nott tossed a 78-yard TD pass to veteran Jim Young for the Lions' lone major. Passaglia added a field goal and a single with the other B.C. points coming on a safety.

Saskatchewan's defensive unit came up with several big plays deep in their own territory, intercepting three passes.

The Argonauts, who have made the EFC playoffs just once in the last six years, appeared in the game during the first half and trailed by just one point as Calgary took a 13-12 lead into the final 30 minutes.

But quarterback Ken Johnson led the Stampeders to two second-half touchdowns and the defence shut the doors on Toronto to assure Calgary second place in the WFC with 22 points on 11 wins and four losses.

Terry Metcalf scored the only Toronto touchdown on an eight-yard pass from quarterback Tony Adams.

Edmonton clinched first place with its victory over Winnipeg, giving the Eskimos 24 points on an 11-2-2 record. The Blue Bombers finished the season 4-12.

Waddell Smith scored Edmonton's lone TD on a pass from quarterback Tom Wilkinson in the first quarter. Dave Cutler added three field goals and a single while kicker Hank Ilesic added a pair of singles.

Wilkinson played just part of the first half before being shaken up when he made a tackle following a field goal attempt. He was replaced by Warren Moon who quarterbacked the remainer of the game.

Dieter Brock tossed a 10-yard pass to Walt Pasaglia for Winnipeg's only TD. Bernie Ruoff, the league's leading scorer, added a field goal and a single to run his personal single season scoring record to 151 points which is seventh best in league history.

Only three other kickers — Cutler, Calgary's Cyril McFall and Lions' Lui Passaglia — have scored more. Cutler holds the best three single season totals, including the league record 195 points set in 1977.

Saturday, Montreal's running back David Green started slowing but finished with 153 yards rushing in leading the Als over Ottawa.

The win clinched first place for Montreal in the EFC on a 10-4-1 record. Ottawa finished second, 7-6-2.

Green's ninth 100-yard game this season gave him total of 1,681 yards, breaking the EFC record of 1,581 set by Jimmy Edwards of Hamilton in 1977.

He is 215 yards short of the CFL record of 1,896 held by Burden.

Billy strikes out as Yankee pilot

In the wake of an alleged fight in Bloomington, Minn., the free-swinging Martin was fired Sunday as manager of New York Yankees and replaced by one-time coach Dick Howser.

Yankee-owner George Steinbenner, supportive of Martin in many of his earlier controversies, apparently reached the limit of his endurance after Billy's latest news-making incident.

Martin, who has a long history of similar incidents, was accused of punching an Illinois man last Wednesday night in the lobby of a Bloomington hotel. His alleged victim, Joseph Cooper of Lincolnshire, Ill., was sent to a hospital where he required 15 to 20 stitches to close cuts on his lip.

BILLY MARTIN
. . . accused of fighting

"We just can't have him getting into these things every two months," Steibrenner said at that time.

But he had nothing to say Sunday after letting Martin go, ending a stormy relationship that started in the middle of the 1975 baseball season. No definitive statement concerning Martin was included in the Yankee announcement, just these succinct words:

"The New York Yankees announced tonight that Billy Martin will not return as manager of the Yankees."

It was the second time in his controversy-studded career that Martin has parted with the Yankees.

In the middle of the 1978 season he resigned under pressure after a series of problems with management and superstar Reggie Jackson.

But less than one week after Bob Lemon had been hired to replace Martin, Steinbrenner reversed his field by saying Martin would return as manager in 1980.

It didn't take Martin quite that long to come back, however. He returned in the middle of 1979 in an effort to fire up a flagging team. But his return did no good as the Yankees finished fourth in the American League East.

Breakers bring end to Cougars streak

Seattle Breakers emerged as the spoilers Sunday by putting an end to Victoria Cougars' winning ways in the Western Hockey League.

Skating and checking furiously, the Breakers struck for three goals in the second period and went on to defeat the Cougars 4-2 in Seattle and end Victoria's victory streak at 10 games, the longest in the Cats' history.

Cougars obtained their 10th straight win Saturday night in Memorial Arena by clipping the winless New Westminster Bruins 6-3 before 2,840 fans.

In Seattle, it was a "short" in the power play — a strong feature of Victoria's play in recent games — that ultimately sealed Cougars' fate.

Trailing 3-2 early in the third, the Cougars were offered a glorious opportunity to draw even, or better, when Seattle's John Neeld drew a double minor at 3:59.

Out came Victoria's power-play attackers, who scored twice earlier in the game to run the Cougars' extra-man goals count to 20 in their last seven games. Breakers successfully thwarted Cougars for more than 2½ minutes and then Brian Graves, cashing in on a costly mistake by Victoria defenceman Tony Feltrin, connected for a shorthanded goal to make it 4-2.

Cougars also had a glorious chance to add another power-play goal earlier, in the second period, when two Seattle players were penalized within an eight-second span. The two-man advantage was nullified just 18 seconds later when Greg Adams drew a minor.

The power-play was in good form Saturday, however, with the Cougars counting three to turn back the struggling Bruins. Pederson, Len Dawes and Bob Jansch connected while Cougars enjoyed a manpower advantage. Brad Palmer, opening scoring with a shorthanded goal, Mark Morrison and Torrie Robertson counted the other Victoria goals.

Randy Wickware, Larry Mollard and Don Werbeniuk scored for Bruins, all in the third period.

The goals by Pederson extended his personal point-scoring streak to 17 games, including the final six games of last season.

A 5-3 Sunday victory by Brandon stretched the Bruins' winless string to 12 games.

In other action Sunday, Saskatoon edged Regina Pats 9-8 when Marc Leclair scored his fourth goal of the game in overtime; Calgary Wranglers took over sole possession of first place in the Eastern Division by shading Lethbridge Broncos 6-4, and Billings Bighorns beat Medicine Hat Tigers 7-2.

Farmers move into B.C. final

Oak Bay Farmer Construction captured the Vancouver Island Junior "B" Football League playoff title by tripping Saanich Hornets 18-6 in the final Sunday at Royal Athletic Park.

With their victory, Farmers earned a berth in the British Columbia final.

Mark Edgington got Farmers on the scoreboard early by running 70 yards for a touchdown on the first play from scrimmage. Dave Morrison kicked the conversion and later supplied a single to give Farmers an 8-0 lead after the first quarter. Dave Marcussen kicked a single to make the count 9-0 at half time.

In the third quarter, Steve Percival ran 60 yards for the final Oak Bay touchdown and quarterback Terry Jones passed to Marcussen for a two-point conversion.

Morrison chalked up a single in the fourth quarter.

Saanich struck back too late when Andy Maxwell passed to Jeff Bray for an unconverted TD with three minutes remaining.

Jones and Hornet quarterback Mark Townsend were selected as most-valuable-players during league award ceremonies at the game.

Edgington and Robin Mayo of Cowichan tied as most-valuable backs, Tom Graham of Hornets and Eric Iverson of Oak Bay shared most-valuable-player honors, Geordie Dagg of Oak Bay was named the most-valuable lineman and Fraser Yule of Nanaimo was honored as coach of the year for the second straight season.

Mexico clinches

BRANTFORD, Ont. — Emilio Montano clinched the second-round North American zone Davis Cup tennis series for Mexico Sunday by defeating Canada's Robert Bettauer. Montano topped his Vancouver rival 7-5, 3-6, 6-3, 2-6, 7-5 in a three-hour, 40 minute marathon to give Mexico a 3-1 lead in the five-match series with one singles match remaining. Mexico defeated Canada in doubles Saturday to take a 2-1 lead.

Bradshaw marvels at mates

Pittsburg Steelers won the mid-season battle of the National Football League powers Sunday with a 14-3 victory over Dallas Cowboys before a frenzied crowd at Pittsburgh.

The Steeler defence clamped down on the vaunted Cowboys attack and quarterback Terry Bradshaw of the Steelers marvelled at what his mates were doing to quarterback Roger Staubach and the rest of the Cowboys.

"This is the best defence the team has played all year," said Bradshaw after the steelers had wrecked Dallas' running game, flattened Staubach and rode Franco Harris' touchdown runs of one and 48 yards to victory.

"If we play against everybody the way we played against Dallas, we'll be back in the Super Bowl."

It was the fourth straight victory by the Steelers over the Cowboys including triumphs in two Super Bowls.

Tony Dorsett, who had run for more than 100 yards in each of Dallas' previous four games, carried 19 times for 73 yards, all but six of the total yards the Cowboys punched out on the ground.

In other games, Tampa Bay defeated Minnesota 12-10, Chicago edged San Francisco 28-27, N.Y. Giants surprised Los Angeles Rams 20-14, Houston rallied to defeat N.Y. Jets 27-24, Denver downed Kansas City 20-3, Cincinnati walloped Philadelphia 37-13, Miami romped over Green Bay 27-7, Baltimore upset New England 31-26, Cleveland defeated St. Louis 38-20, Buffalo edged Detroit 20-17 and New Orleans defeated Washington 14-10.

Harris, who gained 102 yards on 18 carries for the Steelers, scored the only touchdown Pittsburgh needed with his fourth-down, one-yard drive 47 seconds into the second quarter. It capped a nine-play, 63-yard march highlighted by Bradshaw's passes of 17 and 11 yards to John Stallworth.

Atlanta is home to Seattle Seahawks tonight.

Vikettes capture crown

University of Victoria Vikettes proved Sunday they are not just host-team shoo-ins for the Canadian intercollegiate women's field hockey championship tournament that starts Thursday at UVic's McCoy Field.

Vikettes captured the Canada West University Athletic Association championship at Calgary by beating Alberta 2-0 on goals by Susan Taylor and Cynthia McAlpine in what turned out to be the final of a round-robin competition.

Both UVic and Alberta, which collects the CWUAA berth in the national final for finishing second, were unbeaten going into the last match of the tourney.

Earlier the same day, Vikettes dropped Calgary, 7-0. Taylor and Carrie Crookshank each scored twice, Cindy Bray, Mary Cavin and Sarah Angus each counted once.

On Saturday, Vikettes blanked British Columbia Thunderettes 1-0 on a goal by Taylor and then shut out Saskatchewan Huskiettes 2-0 on goals by Taylor and Angus.

The event was the last in a series of three tournaments played to decide the CWUAA champion.

A total of seven teams will be involved in the national championship with games scheduled all day, starting at 8:30 a.m., on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The final is slated for 11 a.m. Sunday.

Hoop Vikes pile up points but defence has problems

By JIM CRERAR

UVic Viking coach Ken Shields suspected his basketball hopefuls would do a lot of scoring in a pair of weekend exhibition games against senior "A" opponents from Vancouver. They did.

Vikings scored 213 points, whipping Gary Taylor's Players 112-82 Sunday and Good Time Charlies 101-71 Saturday in contests at McKinnon Gym.

They were the first games of the season for the Vikings, tuning up for defence of their Canada West University Athletic Association men's championship.

"All it does is give us game experience," Shields conceded after Sunday's romp, "although they (Taylors and Charlies) have some good material. Most of their players have played college ball."

Still, Shields wasn't overjoyed with the way Vikings performed.

"We gave up 82 points today which is too much to give to a senior "A" team," he said. "The problem is, you can get away with sloppy stuff on offence because senior "A" clubs don't concentrate on defence that much.

"We rebounded well but we've got a long way to go to get continuity on offence."

As for the defence, Shields felt his guards let opponents penetrate too deeply and faulted the forwards for not reacting quickly enough to help out in the back court.

Larry Street was best for Taylors with 24 while Gary Emmerson added 15. Former Viking all-star guard Robbie Parris, playing senior "B" basketball in Victoria this season, was loaned to Taylors and scored eight points.

Charlies Sunday beat Ivy's of the Victoria senior "B" league 100-80 in a preliminary to the Viking-Taylor contest.

Vikings resume exhibition play this Friday afternoon at McKinnon against UBC Thunderbirds in a game beginning at 1:30 and follow that with a McKinnon date Saturday at 8:30 p.m. against Burnaby-based Athletes in Action.

The Pandas nipped Saskatchewan Huskiettes 62-60.

In preliminary games Saturday, Victoria beat Lethbridge Pronghorns 81-30 and Saskatchewan 63-43. Alberta beat Regina Cougettes 82-56 and Calgary 51-50. Saskatchewan beat Lethbridge 70-48 while Calgary beat Regina 72-41.

Mt. Douglas reigns

Mt. Douglas blanked Spectrum 3-0 Saturday to climax an unbeaten march and capture the Vancouver Island high school senior girls "AA" field hockey championship.

Victory gives Mt. Doug top Island ranking in the provincial championships at Delta starting Nov. 1. Spectrum and Oak Bay also qualified for the B.C. final.

Allison Snow, Nancy Charlton and Laurie Gordon scored for Mt. Doug in the tournament final.

Mt. Doug reached the final earlier in the day by blanking Port Alberni 2-0 on goals by Charlton and Gordon.

Trish Sherring scored in overtime to provide Spectrum with a hard-fought 2-1 victory over Oak Bay in the other semi-final. Bonnie Hutton counted Spectrum's first goal while Lindsay Shorting scored for Oak Bay.

Rescue plan for Mussels

A former Victoria contractor now living in Parksville has a plan to keep Victoria Mussels in the Northwest Baseball League.

And Robert Peden, who has an option to purchase the indebted class A professional team from brothers Lynn and Jim Chapman, would like to hear from anybody interested in joining him.

A meeting of prospective shareholders will be held in Victoria Thursday night.

Peden said at the weekend that sales of shares will help clear up existing debts and enable Mussels to continue operating in the Northwest League.

"About 20 local investors have already expressed interest," he said. "We hope to clear the debt load — about $20,000 — and start from a clean slate.

"We have every intention of making a go of it," he added. "We have the support of local minor baseball organizations and we're hoping some of these people will become investors too."

Peden said the Chapman brothers "will probably be involved in the operation in some way, but we don't know in what capacity."

Although Mussels were involved in an exciting race for first place in the Northern Division, finishing second with a 41-31, won-lost record, crowds at Royal Athletic Park averaged under 300.

The 1979 operation was reported to have lost $10,000. Mussels, bringing pro baseball back to Victoria after an absence of 25 years, were reported to have lost $30,000 in 1978.

Peden believes such losses could be avoided if the team obtained a working agreement with a major league club.

The Chapmans ran Mussels as an independent team.

Anyone interested in attending Thursday's meeting, said Peden, is asked to contact Lorne Barnswell (382-2871 or 382-9035) for information and a formal invitation.

THIS IS HIS FOURTH ACCIDENT IN TWO YEARS. WHY ISN'T HE PAYING MORE FOR INSURANCE?

Up until now there simply hasn't been a satisfactory system for placing additional financial responsibility on people who consistently cause accidents. As things stand, this man only loses his Safe Driving Vehicle Discount…once.

But that's all going to change.

The Provincial Government has challenged the entire auto insurance industry to develop a new rating system based on individual abilities and responsibilities rather than probabilities–one that doesn't discriminate against anyone because of age, sex, marital status or where they live.

I.C.B.C.'s response is a revolutionary new program called Fundamental Auto Insurance Rating. We call it F.A.I.R. Because it is fair. The program will start to be phased in on March 1, 1980 with first priority being given to removing age, sex and marital status as factors in determining how much you pay for your auto insurance. Those changes will be made in the first two years. Geographic inequalities will start levelling out in 1980 and will be eliminated by 1985.

By March 1, 1982 the basic idea will be in place: everyone will be innocent until proven guilty; everyone will be a safe driver until proven unsafe; everyone will be entitled to a base premium until they lose that right.

But if everyone enjoys these rights, they must also share the responsibilities. That's why the new F.A.I.R. program includes a Driver Accident Premium. The implementation of the Accident Premium will place the principal responsibility on the driver who causes accidents.

And that brings us back to our multiple-accident driver. Obviously, any program that sets a fair base premium is going to cost money. So who'll make up the difference? The bulk of the money will eventually come from those who are responsible for accidents. They'll pay higher premiums. And the more accidents they have, the more frequently they have them, the higher their premiums can go.

Isn't that the way it should be? That's F.A.I.R.

Debbie gets payoff for rugged training

Debbie Scott of UVic came out of sick bay to win the Canada West University Athletic Association women's cross-country championship Saturday at Beacon Hill Park.

The 20-year-old Claremont high school grad, in her second year of physical education at UVic, easily won the 5,000-metre race in a time of 17 minutes, 43.7 seconds.

"I'm surprised and pleased," Debbie said after her rain-drenched victory. "I'd been hoping to finish in the top three."

Debbie had resumed running only seven days previously after a two-week lay-off forced by a severe lung infection.

"I couldn't do anything more than walk for eight days," she said. But a tough training schedule last week in which she logged almost 40 miles paid her a big dividend Saturday.

Her closest rival was Tracey Kelly of Saskatchewan, who finished 35 seconds behind. Bev Bush of Alberta was third in 18:24.4, Diane Cameron of Calgary fourth in 18:44.0 and Brigit Otto of Alberta fifth in 18:45.7.

Debbie Campbell of UVic was ninth in the field of 34 with a 19:09.0 clocking.

The UVic women were third in the team standings behind winning Alberta, 26 points in the reverse scoring tables, and second-place Calgary, 42. UVic had 45.

Winner of the men's title for the second year in a row was Peter Butler of Calgary with a 30:37.4 clocking over 10,000 metres. Steve Pomeroy of UBC was second in 31:57.6 followed by Jorgen Lorenzon, Saskatchewan, 32:46.2; Lyle Kuchmak, Alberta, 32:50.9; Tim Murphy, Calgary, 33:05.4; Gerrard Charanduk, Saskatchewan, 33:09.3, and Rory Lambert, Alberta, 33:12.3.

Forty men started the race.

Only Wests unbeaten after Vikings blanked

Victoria West is the lone unbeaten team in the first division of the Vancouver Island Soccer League after blanking previously-undefeated University of Victoria Vikings 3-0 Sunday at UVic.

In other Sunday matches, Powell River Villas and Gorge slipped into a three-way tie for second place with Vikings.

Villas edged visiting Castaways 2-1 and Gorge tripped Nanaimo 2-1 at Hampton Park. Oak Bay and Meston's Auto Body played to a scoreless deadlock at Heywood Avenue Park in the only other match.

On Saturday, Cosmopolitan Royals nipped Victoria Athletics 3-2 at Royal Athletic Park.

After playing to a scoreless tie in the first half, Vikings opened scoring with an own-goal to send Wests ahead at 56 minutes.

Dan Henry scored for Wests from 18 yards out 11 minutes later after collecting a pass from John McGuire and Gary McLaren set up Steve Forslund for the last tally at 79 minutes.

At Powell River, Phil Galigos and Lorne Harry scored at 20 and 58 minutes, respectively, for the home squad and Robert Gutierrez countered for Castaways at 60 minutes.

Dan Hood opened scoring for Nanaimo at three minutes but Yosu Iruretagoyena replied at nine minutes for Gorge on a cross from Glenn Johnston to knot the count 1-1 at half time. Howie Kirk fired the winner for Gorge at 55 minutes on a pass from Mike Collis.

In the Saturday tussle, John Leier opened scoring for Athletics at three minutes but Bob Mackie equallized for Royals two minutes later. Dean Stokes put Athletics ahead again at 33 minutes and Dave McKay knotted the count 2-2 at the half with a goal at 41 minutes.

Evie and Bob fire big fivepin bombs

Evie Weinberger and Bob Milton were firing big bombs as they earned fivepin laurels during the third week of competition in the 17th annual Victoria Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest.

Evie's blasts bounced the pins for three over-300 games that produced one of the highest totals ever recorded in the women's section of the competition. Rolling in the Wednesday Major League at Town and Country Lanes, she combined accuracy and consistency to collect the women's award with a sizzling 319-326-321 — 966 series.

Milton topped 300 twice as he sandwiched a powerhouse 353 second game between a starting effort of 295 and a 310 finish for a 958 series in the Credit Union League at Sidney's Miracle Lanes to earn the men's fivepin award.

By winning the awards, Weinberger and Milton qualify for the annual Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs.

Auto Racers slate meeting

The Vancouver Island Track Racing Association, which has governed automobile racing on the Island for more than 25 years, may find its authority challenged by a new group.

It could be CCAR — the Capital City Auto Racers.

An organizational meeting of CCAR will be held tonight, starting at 8, in the Westwinds Hotel at Langford.

Race driver Larry Pollard, one of the organizers of the new association, is inviting anybody interested in car racing to attend.

Formation of CCAR is seen as the result of a disagreement between Western Speedway and VITRA. The rift disrupted scheduled racing at the Langford oval and VITRA shifted support to Nanaimo's Grandview Bowl.

Knotts, "cocky guy" on Three's Company

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Don Knotts cheerfully admits that he has only one characterization for television.

It doesn't matter whether he's on The Andy Griffith Show where he won five Emmys as Deputy Barney Fife, or Three's Company, where he's Ralph Furley, the new apartment house manager. He's always that cocky rooster scratching and crowing his way from one rebuff to the next.

Knotts joins ABC's Three's Company after Norman Fell and Audrey Lindley got their own new series, The Ropers.

He moves into the Santa Monica apartment house where John Ritter, Suzanne Somers and Joyce DeWitt have lived together the last two years. He immediately takes off after another new tenant, played by Ann Wedgeworth, and her rejections only egg him on.

"He thinks he knows it all and he keeps getting rebuffed," says Knotts, who is shy. "He comes right back. He's a cocky guy."

Norman Fells's Stanley Roper was prudish, staid and stuffy.

"I don't play as staid or placid as Norman did. I have a different kind of character. Not too far from Barney Fife. A little older Barney."

Special ballet to greet Carter

MONTREAL (CP) — Les Grands Ballets Canadiens will give a special command performance for visiting U.S. President Jimmy Carter at Ottawa's National Arts Centre, Nov. 9., a spokesman for the Montreal dance company confirmed.

The special 6 p.m. pre-dinner performance will feature dancer Vincent Warren who has come out of retirement to dance in Adieu Robert Schumann, created for him last spring by leading Canadian choreographer Brian Macdonald.

The most romantically lush of the company's ballets, Adieu Robert Schumann focuses on the composer's tragic plunge into madness.

On stage with Warren in this dramatic ballet are dancer Annette Av Paul as the young Clara Schumann, pianist Denise Masse and contralto Maureen Forrester who sings during the performance.

The Ottawa performance is the second occasion that President Carter and the Montreal troupe have crossed paths.

Pete just missed fame and fortune

scott's world

by vernon scott

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Pete Best, a $12,000-a-year English civil servant, is the fifth Beatle, the drummer replaced by Ringo Starr six weeks before the Beatles cut their first record and zoomed to international stardom.

Best held up his thumb and forefinger, holding them an inch apart, and said, "I came that close to fame, glamour and untold wealth."

Best, a muscular, stocky man with a thick Liverpudlian accent and a thatch of black hair, lives modestly in Liverpool, where it all began, working in a job placement center, occasionally musing on what might have been.

He recounts his two years with George Harrison, Paul McCartney and John Lennon without rancor. But it was the Beatles themselves who fired him.

Pete was 17 years old in 1959 and working with high school friends in a group called "The Blackjacks." George, Paul and John hung out at his mother's Liverpool coffee club, The Casbah.

His trio of friends, along with a bass player named Stu Sutcliffe, put together a singing group named "The Silver Beatles" and made a brief tour of Scotland. When they returned, they invited Pete to be their drummer.

"I auditioned for the lads and two days later we left for Germany," Pete recalled. "Our first club date was in Hamburg where we dropped the 'Silver' from our name.

"For two years we were like brothers. I was especially close to John. We began drawing big crowds and attracting attention. Sutcliffe quit of his own accord and tragically died of a brain hemorrhage not long after.

"Then one day Brian Epstein, who managed the Beatles, called me in for a chat. It was in August 1962, almost two years to the day after we'd played our first date in Hamburg.

"He told me, 'The lads want you out. They want to replace you with Ringo Starr because he's a better drummer.'"

Pete was stunned. He believes the real reason for his sacking was jealousy on the part of the other three.

"I later learned they were upset because people were beginning to call the group 'Pete Best and the Beatles.' I was getting more attention than the others and they didn't like it," he said.

Pete quickly joined another group, "Lee Curtis and the All-Stars," and found himself on the same rock bill with The Beatles (complete with Ringo) within eight weeks of his departure.

"I passed the lads coming off stage but they never even spoke to me," Pete said. "Nor have I had any contact, not a word from them since."

Pete has re-entered the Beatles' lives in a curious manner. He was hired by producer Dick Clark as technical advisor for the ABC-TV movie Birth of the Beatles, an early history of the group from 1959-1964.

The sound track, featuring early Beatle hits, was done by another group, "Rain," which Pete says astonishingly reproduces the sound of the Beatles in the early days.

"They even copied the mistakes the Beatles made in their records for authenticity," Pete said. "As technical director I saw that the clothes, haircuts, locations and personal characteristics were faithful to the originals.

Birth of the Beatles, however, may not be seen next month as originally scheduled by ABC. Clark and the network are being sued for $140 million by Apple Corp., Ltd. which holds rights for George, Paul, John and Ringo.

A.I. babies risk marrying genetic kin

DENVER (UPI) — Some generous sperm donors are fathering so many children that their children "may someday meet and marry" without knowing they are related.

Dr. Paul Wexler, chief of obstetrics at Rose Medical Center, said individual donors may be siring as many as 15 children over a given three-year period and worries about the consequences such generosity may have on society in the form of genetic disorders.

"If we have a donor who has been working three to five years for more than one physician, there is a risk that his children may someday meet and marry," he said, adding that the donor's offspring would be about the same age and would likely be in the same social and economic group.

Effective, large-scale use of artificial insemination has only occurred within the past 30 years and more than 6,000 children born in the U.S. last year were conceived by aritificial insemination.

In an effort to cope with other possible hazards of artificial insemination, Wexler said, most obstetricians test donors for genetic defects or history of disease, but there is no formal policy, either in Colorado or elsewhere, requiring that they do so.

Because of the sensitive and confidential nature of the donation, few doctors ask donors to provide more than a minimal health history.

Under Colorado's Uniform Parentage Act, the woman's husband is considered the natural father of the child if he consents to the artificial insemination. But there are other liabilities regarding donation of sperm.

Denver lawyer Scott Honegger said a sperm bank could be held liable if sperm received by a woman is mislabelled.

Honegger said a "product liability" issue could be raised if, for instance, a woman had a child of a different race from that of herself and her husband.

A consent form used at Wexler's hospital stipulates the donor be of the same race as the couple wanting artificial insemination and that there be no obvious genetic abnormalities.

Wexler said he favors guidelines requiring that both the woman and the donors be tested for genetic abnormalities, that records be kept on the donors, that follow-up be done on infants born of donors and that sperm donations per donor be limited.

Wexler, secretary of the Colorado Society of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, said his group backs such guidelines. The group also favors a registry of donors.

8 get school gate for too-short hair

HERTFORD, England (UPI) — It could never have happened a decade ago, but eight teenage students at the Hitchin Boys School have been suspended for wearing their hair too short.

"This very short hair is becoming a cult and I'm determined to stop it," said headmaster John Gray. "It is a matter of internal school discipline."

Gray said most of the boys who were suspended had shaved off all but one strip of hair, leaving a "Mohican" style haircut.

"They used to complain about it being too long!" exclaimedAlfred Ovenden, father of one of the suspended boys.

The headmaster said all eight students could return when their hair had grown "to an acceptable length."

4 prisoners die in plane crash

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Four U.S. prisoners headed for a Tijuana border exchange were among 10 persons killed when a Mexican government plane crashed into a telephone pole and burst into flames, officials said.

Also killed in the Sunday morning crash were the two Mexican pilots and four prison guards, said the U.S. consulate in Tijuana.

San Diego police Lieut. Dave Spisak said the pilot of the Otter turboprop apparently became disoriented in fog, wandered over the Mexican border and crashed one kilometre north of the international border between Tijuana and the rugged Otay Mesa area of San Diego.

The four Americans were en route to the United States as part of a prisoner-exchange program. They were identified as Steve Michael Olsen of Imperial Beach; Julie Ann Sheldon of Cambria; Lotus Mary Sanchez of Garden Grove, and Gerald John Lapinski, hometown unknown.

Two of the prisoners, Olsen and Ms. Sheldon, were married in prison and were returning to the United States to be reunited with their nine-month-old daughter, authorities said.

Two anti-Trident protesters held

BANGOR, Wash. (UPI) — Two demonstrators were arrested Sunday night for trespassing at the U.S. Navy's Trident nuclear submarine base while several hundred other protesters pitched tents outside the complex, authorities said.

A base spokesman said two unidentified persons were arrested by security guards when they entered the base grounds.

Chanting "Stop Trident Right Now," about 1,000 protesters marched one mile to the base on the Hood Canal after rallying at a nearby farm.

Organizers of the protest said the demonstration was one of several actions against the Trident system that were held during the weekend.

They said others took place at the Lockheed plant at Sunnyvale, Calif., a proposed submarine base at King's Bay, Ga.; at the Groton, Conn., Boat Yard, and the General Dynamics plant in St. Louis, Mo.

The demonstrators called for an end to the Trident program and the conversion of defense industries to nonmilitary uses.

Hillary's son hurt near peak

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — The 24-year-old son of Sir Edmund Hillary was rescued from a base camp Sunday five miles from Mount Everest, the peak conquered by his father in 1953.

"I am relieved. My son has only broken his arm," said Sir Edmund, 60, who was aboard the helicopter that lifted his son Peter from the slopes of 6,795 metre Mount Ama Dablam after an avalanche.

South Korea mine fire toll at 42

SEOUL (Reuter) — The death toll in a South Korean coal mine swept by fire last Friday has reached 42, making it the worst mining disaster in South Korean history, an official spokesman said today.

A spokesman for the state-run Korea Coal Corp., which runs the Unsung Mine in Munkyong, about 152 kilometres southeast of Seoul, said 85 of the 126 miners initially trapped have been rescued. But one of them died in hospital early today.

Most of the victims were suffocated by fumes, the spokesman said.

The cause of the blaze still was being investigated.

Sources in the coal company said the death toll brought to 66 the number of miners killed in accidents at the Unsung mine since it opened in 1974.

Cleaning lady's house a garbage pit

CHICAGO (AP) — Mary McCarthy, a frail woman, spent 40 of her 67 years cleaning up after other people.

During that time, however, she says she never found time to clean out her own house. City officials expect today to cart off the last of more than 10 tons of garbage from inside her modest South Side home.

McCarthy retired as a Chicago Tribune cleaning woman last year after 10 years there. Before that, she worked 30 years as a cleaning woman for another company.

"In the winter, I couldn't take it out because the snow was blocking the way," she said. "I couldn't shovel it."

Acting on a search warrant, city officials arrived at the blue frame house Friday. To enter, they took the door off the hinges when it couldn't be opened because of garbage piled inside.

No one had entered the house since 1962, shortly after her husband died.

"She must have been sleeping on garbage," building inspector Robert Snodgrass said after workers found the two beds of the house underneath a pile of garbage.

As crews tried to carve out enough space to continue working through the debris, a neighbor found Mrs. McCarthy, dressed in clean blue slacks and a green sweater, carrying home yet another bag of garbage.

"She is a quiet woman that pretty much kept to herself," said neighbor George Macuga.

Exxon $-plan called big lift for Foothills

WASHINGTON (CP) — Exxon Corp. gave sponsors of the joint Canadian-U.S. northern natural gas pipeline a major lift last week by filing a plan with the U.S. energy department to help finance the $15-billion project.

John McMillian, chairman of the U.S. sponsor, Northwest Energy Co., said recently that reluctance by natural gas producers and by officials in Alaska to help finance the pipeline was the major obstacle to success. Foothills Pipe Lines Ltd. of Calgary is the Canadian sponsor.

Exxon's proposal calls for the Prudhoe Bay gas producers to contribute 40 per cent of the Alaskan portion of the project's equity, of ownership, base. They would also buy 40 per cent of the Alaskan portion's debt as an investment.

The pipeline would run from Alaska through the Yukon to a point near Calgary, before branching to Antioch, Calif., in the west and to Dwight, Ill., near Chicago.

Major U.S. oil companies at Prudhoe Bay are Exxon, Atlantic Richfield Co. and Standard Oil Co. (Ohio).

Both Canadian and U.S. executives testified at congressional subcommittee hearings recently that if financing problems can be overcome quickly, the pipeline could be built in time to start U.S. deliveries by November, 1984.

Oil profits benefit all: Gulf

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rising oil company profits are "good news" for the entire nation as well as the industry, Gulf Oil Corp. board chairman Jerry McAfee said Sunday.

McAfee, appearing on the CBS program Face the Nation program, said dramatically increased earnings will help fund the companies' search for increased domestic oil sources.

Punitive action against the oil companies would only "punish the American people" by "depriving the industry of the wherewithal" to do its job, he said.

United S. Koreans brandish clenched fist at North

Associated Press

SEOUL (AP) — South Koreans closed ranks against North Korea today, and the United States moved an aircraft carrier closer to the Korean coast as the government — currently headed by Choi Khy Hah — admitted that President Park Chung-hee was assassinated by the head of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency (KCIA).

Opposition leader Kim Young-sam, a strong critic of Park's government, said the entire nation is united in warning North Korea it "should by no means miscalculate this misfortune of ours as an opportunity for invasion, and it should bear in mind that the nation is determined to defend free democracy under any circumstances."

Another leading opponent of Park, 1971 presidential candidate Kim Dae-jung, also warned the Communists "not to try to take advantage of the situation."

"The entire people's voice is united, transcending political differences."

Meanwhile, the Soviet news agency Tass today accused the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency of having directed Park's assassination.

In a dispatch from Tokyo, Tass said Park was killed because he had become "too odious a figure even for Washington."

The Carter administration denied the allegation.

North Korea followed the lead of South Korea and the U.S. in putting its forces on alert, but U.S. officials said they saw no evidence of an impending North Korean attack.

U.S. Defence Secretary Harold Brown earlier said the United States had sent two airborne warning and control aircraft to South Korea and moved an aircraft carrier, already on station between Japan and Korea, closer to the Korean coast.

Choi, the defence, home and foreign ministers and other key officials met for two hours today and said: "Everything is in order and calm has been restored."

However, the South Korean armed forces remained on emergency alert, and the country was still under martial law. There were no disturbances.

Park's body was in a closed coffin at the presidential residence, the Blue House, and hundreds of thousands gathered at public altars across the country to burn incense and mourn the dead leader. His funeral was to be held Saturday.

Park was shot Friday by the head of the KCIA, Kim Jae-kyu. The government said at first the shooting was accidental but the chief of the investigation, Gen. Chon Doo-hwan, admitted at a news conference Sunday that Kim assassinated the president.

Chon said Kim shot Park and Park's chief bodyguard three times each during a dinner Friday night while five of Kim's men killed four other presidential bodyguards and seriously wounded another in the next room.

Chon said Kim planned the assassination because he was out of favor with the president and feared he would be fired. He decided to do it that night after he and the chief bodyguard, Cha Chi-chul, got into a heated argument during the dinner, Chon said.

Kim and all five of his men were under arrest. Chon said many others were being questioned to determine whether they were involved.

A spokesman for New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Centre said the hospital planned to send a cake up to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's room,but wasn't sure whether he would be able to eat a piece. "But don't you think it would be a nice gesture?" asked the spokesman. "We kicked it around at an administrative staff meeting and we thought it would be nice."

Dear Readers:

With Halloween the day after tomorrow, may I point out that this happy event sometimes ends in disaster for some. According to the National Safety Council, 135 Halloween fatalities occurred last year in the U.S. Some where children who died in Halloween-related traffic accidents. Some were youngsters who were fatally burned due to flammable costumes.

The American Optometric Association, whose 22,000 members are concerned with the need for seeing and being seen, offer the following safety tips:

— Buy flameproof costumes only. Or if costumes are made at home, treat the fabric with flame-resistant solution.

— Because masks, floppy hats, wigs and veils often interfere with a child's vision, use makeup instead.

— Accessories such as swords, broomsticks, hatchets, wands, etc., should be made of cardboard rather than plastic, metal or wood. Sharp items are dangerous.

— Provide youngsters with flashlights to prevent falls on sidewalks or porch steps. (Positively no lighted candles should be carried!)

— Decorate your child's costume and trickster bag with reflective tape to make them highly visible to motorists.

— Remind children that they should never enter the home of a stranger or accept rides.

Dear Abby:

A woman physician, married for nine years to a career officer in a foreign military service, says their marriage was never consummated. She signed herself Doing Fine Without.

I am reminded of a quotation from Voltaire, who said (re sex):)'The only aberration is abstinence.'

Respectfully,

Joel Friedman

Dear Joel:

One could say, 'Abstinence makes the heart grow fonder.'

Dear Abby:

My fiance and I went to see a counsellor because we can't seem to agree on many things. The invitations are out, yet I still have many doubts about going through. The counsellor says to either postpone the wedding or forget it. What does one do (and how) at this stage?

It can only get worse.

Chicken

Dear Chicken:

Cancel the wedding either by telephone or telegram immediately. It will be somewhat sticky, but far better than being stuck in a bad marriage.

Here at home the horizons are much closer

Moving footloose and free through the West, one can become disoriented. Try as I might, I couldn't remember where we saw the buffalo. So I asked my wife, who came up with a prompt answer.

"Waterton Lakes national park," she said. "Don't you remember? They were all just inside that big enclosure."

Since the buffalo paddock is nothing less than vast, embracing a lake and a mountain or two as well as a tremendous sweep of Alberta plain, that last was a stroke of luck. It meant we could sit safe in our car and watch the mighty beasts while they grazed.

That, at least, is what I thought until Win left the sheltering car with her camera, teetered over the Texas gate, which is no gate at all but a hoof-discouraging set of parallel steel rods at ground level, and headed for the buffalo.

A massive brown bull scratched his shoulder against a fence post. Win, brave as a lion, raised her camera dn took his picture. The bull snorted, swung his head and rolled a mean eye. Win's courage evaporated. She fled back to the car.

By this time, the Great Plains had become our familiar habitat. We had jogged our way south through a succession of sun-baked, blue-sky days until wooded ridges rolled up ahead of us, and water gleamed blue in the distance.

We had come to Elkwater Lake, at the feet of Alberta's lovely Cypress Hills. Beyond this provincial park was an area we had been urged not to miss.

"Between Cypress Hills and Wild Horse on the Alberta-Montana border," Steve told us, "you'll find the last open rangeland in North America. Don't miss it."

We had no intention of missing it, although once committed to that stretch, we entertained second thoughts. It was simply too big ... too silent ... too utterly lonely.

Here was the free prairie as it sprawled before the white man tamed it. There were no fences and no fields, just the dun-colored flatlands stretching in all directions to merge with the arching sky. Buffalo grass clothed the land. Close to the highway that bored narrow and straight between horizons, we saw a little band of antelope. They watched us, poised and danity with high heads and sleek, golden-tawny coats. Then they spooked and wheeled away with a flash of white rump-patches.

Also, we saw horses on the skyline, but could only guess whether they were wild.

But except for the highway, which must surely be one of North America's loneliest, we saw no sign of human occupation.

At last the featureless landscape was interrupted. Buildings lifted from the flat ahead. We pulled into the custom port of Wild Horse.

The Canadian customs man smiled and waved us on through. He called to his American opposite number across the border, "A couple for you!"

With this casual send-off, we crossed into the State of Montana, trading the emptiness of unfenced plains for fences and fields, ranch-houses and the occasional little town.

We ducked back into Canada near Waterton Lakes, and after hobnobbing with these obliging buffalo, threaded Crowsnest Pass into British Columbia.

Even though the sales tax which opulent Alberta omits was waiting for us in b.c., and though our evening bottle of wine cost us considerably more, it was good to be back in our home province.

We'd had enough of the plains: we were conditioned to a different kind of country, where the only long view is a sea view and the distances are shorter between land horizons.

In the orchard city of Creston, we added a 40-pound box of rosyred MacIntoshes to our disorderly load. Then we lit out for the Coast, by way of a Hope-Princeton Highway alongside which the scarlet vine maple of autumn flamed against a background of dark Pacific-slope evergreen.

MARK BRENNAN, 75, stands at foot of CN Tower Saturday following his climb to the top. Brennan, along with 1,125 participants, paid $3 to climb the 1,760 stairs of the Toronto landmark in a United Way sponsored event. Brennan, who jogs three miles a day, made it to the top in 25 minutes, and was surprised how easy it was to make the dash to the top.

Myths plague elderly image

DAVID ZINMAN
Newsday

Science writers at a recent press briefing on aging heard a speaker tell a story about a couple well into their 80s who visited a sex therapist.

"That's why we're here," the husband said emphatically.

"When," asked the therapist, "was the first time you had such a problem?"

"Why, last night," the wife replied matter of factly. "And then again this morning."

The story touched off laughter at the Columbia University conference on "Aging: Research and Perspectives." But it was also told in a semi-serious vein, because the tale neatly summed up a growing effort on the part of gerontologists (specialists in aging problems) to break what they regard as a plethora of false images about the elderly.

"We have to shatter the myths and stereotypes that put older people on the shelf and treat them as older infants," said Dr. Robert N. Butler, director of the National Institute on Aging. The institute, in Bethesda, Md., is the federal agency that funds research in this field. Unless public attitudes change, Butler feels, the elderly will continue to have a difficult time finding their rightful place in society.

The problem is compounded by the emergence of the elderly as a rapidly growing segment of our country. In the next 40 years, the median age will jump from 27 to 37. There are now 24 million over age 65 — about 10 percent of our nation. By the year 2020, there will be 45 million in that age group. By 2050, the number will swell to more than 55 million, representing one in six Americans.

The problem Butler and others are tussling with is that this enlarging chunk of our population is vastly misunderstood. Of course, there is more sickness and disability in an older population. But at the same time, "it (the over-65 age group) is overwhelmingly a healthy population," Butler said. "The retiree at age 65, if a man, has an average life expectancy of 14 years. If a woman, it's 18 years. You can do an awful lot in such a period of time."

Yet, myths about old age abound. The more persistent ones that gerontologist cite are that most older people:

— (Don't have sexual relations. But, in fact, many gerontologists believe the majority of the old are interested in sex. And they would welcome help with the physical, emotional and social problems that interfere with its enjoyment.

— (Are disabled and dependent. But in recent years, more than 80 percent of older persons have become self-sufficient and mobile and 14 percent are completely free of chronic conditions.

The last is the most pervasive myth, said Elaine M. Brody of the Philadelphia Geriatric Center. Many assume that during this century, family ties have become weakened and that adult children "dump" their parents in institutions.

— (End up in nursing homes. Of the nation's 24 million people over age 65, slightly more than 1 million — not quite 5 percent — are in institutions.

Surprisingly, for the most part, Brody said, the evidence is just the opposite. "Ties between generations continue to be strong and viable ... and the family, rather than professionals or community organizations, provide the vast majority of life-long health and social services," she said. "When families are unable to care for their elderly, a constellation of personal, social and economic factors is usually at work. In the main, institutionalization is the last resort after all possible alternatives have been explored."

Perhaps, the sexual myth is the oldest. Myra I. Lewis, a Washington social worker, says most people still think of sex in old age as "vaguely indecent." Yet, Lewis says medical studies show that many women experience little serious deterioration in sexual capacity due to age factors alone. Older men often notice more distinct changes in sexual functions. But these vary markedly from man to man.

Alcohol can set back cold recovery

By DR. L.L. COLEMAN

My husband is not a heavy drinker. He takes one or two cocktails before dinner. When he gets sick with a cold or a grippe and is given an antibiotic for it, he insists on having his drinks anyway. I feel that the drinks are bad for him. It causes a lot of arguments.

Mrs. M.B.

Dear Mrs. B.:

Since your husband is a "social" drinker and gives no evidence of alcohol addiction, I can't understand why he can't forfeit his drink during periods of infection. In general, people have little interest in drinking during these times.

Most physicians feel that the patient is better off without alcohol during periods of infectious diseases. They have found that alcohol, even in small quantities, may cause swelling of the mucous membrane of the upper respiratory system. Nasal congestion and sinusitis may be aggravated, too. Patients with infections of the prostate have found that their symptoms are aggravated with even a minimum intake of alcohol.

And there is always the possibility of alcohol reacting with the drugs.

Dear Doctor:

From the day our doctor told us that my husband has a cancer, difficult problems have arisen with our two adolescent children. They are 17 and 15. I find that it's almost as difficult to handle their reaction as it is for me to adjust to my husband's illness. Is this a common reaction in households that are upset by such bad news?

Mrs. L.L.H.

Dear Mrs. H.:

It is a well-established fact that cancer, or any other severe illness, can undermine the psychological structure of the entire family. Adolescents, particularly, find it difficult to adjust to the restructuring of their roles in the family when it is afflicted with a calamity.

Young people who have gone on their merry way suddenly find that their life program is disrupted. They must undertake new obligations; they must suddenly take life more seriously; they may even feel guilty about enjoying themselves. These reactions may take a variety of forms. The children may become suddenly hostile and generally more difficult to cope with.

It is asking too much of you to handle your husband's illness and the changed emotional patterns of your children. A group discussion among you, your children and your doctor will give your children a better insight into what is expected of them now.

It is remarkable how well young people can grasp the immensity of a family problem and recognize the importance of their own contribution to its solution.

Fate looms large in Karen's career

elizabeth forbes

Fate has played a definite part in Karen Selk's dedication to the art of weaving and spinning.

It started at University of Wisconsin.

There she met a woman who had lived in South America and learned the art of spinning and weaving from the natives.

Karen became interested in her skill with design and in her theory that to learn anything of the art there must be active participation.

So, for the duration of her university career she did some spinning and weaving with that woman.

Later came marriage to Jim Selk, also of the University of Wisconsin, followed by a decision to move to the Pacific Coast and, as it turned out, to Victoria.

As they travelled west through tree and bush country, Karen's thoughts turned to a primitive method of weaving with a back strap loom that she had learned from the South American woman.

At various campsites where they stopped she spent her time looking for the right kind of sticks and then, with some wool she happened to have with her, in practising that method.

"I'd attach one stick to a tree or something solid and stationary, and the other to either my belt or pant buckle," she recalls.

"That way, believe it or not, you can weave perfectly."

She also acquired a four-harness frame loom that sat on a table and with it she made pillow covers, scarves, small tapestries and bags and gave them to family and friends.

Then, in the spring of 1975, something happened that, as she puts it, saw her really hooked (no pun intended).

She signed for a two-week workshop at Cherryville, 30 miles east of Vernon, an annual event run by Swedish people and with the looms set up in a large barn.

"It was a wonderful learning experience," she says. "I will never forget it."

Her husband backed her in the idea and urged that she give it a try.

That was all she needed.

By the end of the year she had given up work as head of the environment centre at Camosun College, a room in the Selk home had been cleared for teaching, and she was on her way.

Now, four years later, you'll find her dividing most of her time between a little specialty shop named Fan Tan in the Chinese alley of the same name, where she has classes, and at the House of Niven, upstairs in the Central Building, where she also teaches.

Karen Selk likes to spin outdoors

Her classes number anywhere from four to eight people, and that's the way she likes it.

"With that number you can give everyone a bit of extra attention; there's opportunity for questions, especially from those who would be a bit shy in a larger group, and there is time for detailed answers."

Another of Karen Selk's interests is in the Victoria Handweavers and Spinners Guild, where she is one of some 230 members, a good percentage of whom are young people; and where she will be teaching a class in January.

Right now, however, it is the Guild's annual exhibition and sale of work, next weekend, that is holding her attention.

She has turned out, on her own loom, towels, blankets, items of clothing, cushions and many other things for this event.

These will not be grouped as a personal contribution, she reminds you, but will appear with the over-all work of every member of the guild who enters the exhibition and sale.

Looking ahead, Karen's dreams take on an even rosier hue.

She envisions the Selks owning a small farm some day and, if that happens, she dreams of a weaving and spinning school on the property, something like the one at Cherryville.

"It would likely be somewhere on Vancouver Island," she tells you, "because my husband loves the sea and he would not be happy if he was too far away from it."

Postscript — The Victoria Handweavers and Spinners Guild's annual exhibition and sale of work will be held on the weekend in St. Luke's Church Hall, 3811 Synod Road.

It will be open Thursday evening during a viewing party for members only, arranged from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The public and fellow spinners are invited to attend on Friday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission, with door prizes, is free.

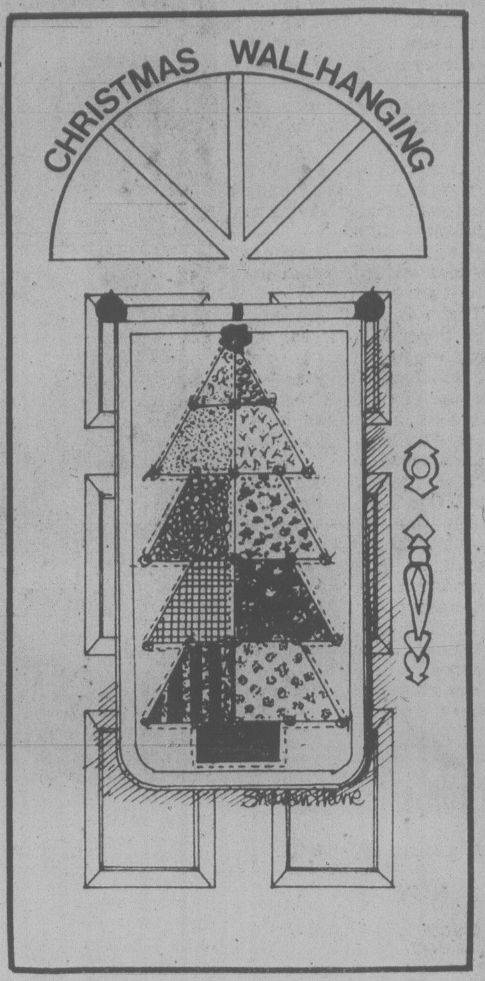
This tree greets folks at Christmas



Here's a pretty way to welcome yuletide guests at your door this season. This patchwork Christmas tree wall hanging pattern comes in two sizes, one for a hanging approximately 50 inches (125 cm) long — it can be placed on the front door, inside hallway or dining room wall — and one to make smaller tree motifs for apron pockets, place mats or small decorator items.

It was designed by Barbara Kelcey, and is decorated with white buttons with large holes which we had specially made for us in Japan. The buttons are just the right size for stringing with yarn in Christmas colors, to be tied in pretty bows at the ends of the "branches."

If you've been doing some Christmas sewing, you may have enough scraps around to whip this up at no extra cost. If not, you will only have to purchase approximately half a yard (50 cm) of the different Christmas prints.

I can also see other fabrics being used effectively — pretty red, white and green taffeta, sparkly fabrics, velveteens in rich reds and greens, etc. (In fact, one of the richest, most striking wall hangings I've ever seen was done in solid shades of corduroy!)

Perhaps you could turn this into a family tree hanging for the holidays. Make little cards with the name of each member of your own and your visitors' families to hang on the tree.

You can use the tree, bulletin-board style, for attaching simple sayings or messages, with each person having his or her own segment. There are places for 11 names — if you have a larger group expected, you might have to make two! Perhaps you could also use the tree as part of a secret treasure hunt.

Decorating the tree can be a child's delight; the children will find it much more meaningful if they help. Have them make their own individual ornaments which can be attached with pins, or sewn on. They can collect tiny pine cones to be used au naturel or painted gold or silver. Try jingle bells in these colors, as well as the multi-colored variety.

With the abundance of Christmas tree decorating ideas around, you'll have no trouble making your hanging truly unique. It can be kept as is for the next year, or stripped and started afresh.

For place mats, just place the tree motif to the left — make napkins to mix and match in the same fabrics. How about making a Bottle Bag, a simple gift to make gift bottle cover which will delight the recipient. These would also make great bazaar items as they are simple to make and would sell well.

With this simple, straight piecing, wall hanging pattern, you can make a variety of pretty Christmas decorator items and have fun in the process!

Patterns Available:

No. BK-1015; PATCHWORK CHRISTMAS TREE WALL HANGING, designed by Barbara Kelcey. Contains complete instructions, actual-size pattern pieces, yardage requirements, etc. for two sizes: wall-hanging and miniature version as described. $2.20.

BUTTON PACK — Special craft size (large holes) white buttons suitable for threading yarn as described. Use for many craft projects, tufting quilts, etc. Pak of 3 dozen — $1.20.

HOW TO ORDER: Send your name, address and postal code, along with a check or money order to: Hearthside Patterns, c/o Victoria Times, P.O. Box 9120, Station E, Edmonton, Alta. T5P 4K2.

Dr. Cope W. Schwenger Faculty of Medicine, University of Toronto, posed that question at an international seminar on successful aging.

"Let's look at some of the pros and cons," he told me. "Firstly, on the plus side, remember that the vast majority of Canadians 65 and over are living at home (less than 10 per cent in institutions), are in reasonably good health (only 15 per cent disabled) and are enjoying their retirement.

"Secondly, with just over 8 per cent of our population over 65 (compared to 10 per cent in the U.S. and 14 per cent in the U.K.) we are relatively new at the elderly game and, in the early future, won't be having those high proportions faced by some countries.

"Thirdly, the Canadian dependency ratio (those not working compared with those working) will more than likely improve at least until the end of the century because of the continuing reduction in the number of children.

"Fourthly, the elderly are becoming progressively better off, better educated, more sophisticated and healthier — especially the young-old (65 to 74).

"However, there are at least four minus factors to consider in determining our ability to deal with the elderly.

First, there is good evidence that the old-old (75 and over) and particularly the very-old (85 and over) are increasing at an even faster rate than the young-old.

"Secondly, although other countries have been able to get by with very high proportions of the aged there is no reason to conclude that we shall be able, therefore, to do so in the future without special efforts. This may prove specially difficult if, as has been predicted, the total economic pie stays the same or is smaller.

"Thirdly, it is not at all certain that future parents will be willing to accept a reduction in services (health, education, etc.) for their fewer children — or that one young child (usually healthy) is necessarily equivalent in cost to one elderly adult (more often ill).

"Finally, the smaller families being produced by post-war baby boom adults bode ill for the future care of this generation when it moves into old age shortly after the turn of the century. Not only are the children of the future old-old fewer in number but the daughters will be more likely to be working outside the home and they also will be older and not as available or well equipped to bear the major share of personal care and housekeeping of elderly relatives."

Dr. Schwenger believes that we can cope successfully with these problems. I pursue the matter further with him in upcoming columns.

Trudeau won't pick successor

OTTAWA (UPC) — Liberal leader Pierre Trudeau said Saturday the militant wing within the party will have to choose his successor because he has "never thought" of retirement from the party leadership.

The former prime minister said in interview with CTV's Question Period that he will not follow through with Liberal Party tradition by personally selecting or endorsing a leader when he eventually steps down as head of the party.

"In terms of successors, I never ... followed the precept that good administrators have that they should always prepare the succession," he said.

"I've never thought about my retirement so I've never really prepared for it and I assumed that within the party the process of militancy would bring forward people who would be prepared to carry on in the same directions."

Trudeau, who refused to answer questions about his future role in the Liberal Party — except to reiterate that he intended to lead the federal Liberals into the Quebec referendum next spring — said his party can once again become the government.

Trudeau said past Liberal leaders — such as MacKenzie King and Lester Pearson — won power after being repudiated at the polls. However, he agreed the party needed a time in opposition to "rediscover their strength, vigor and so on."

Saturday night, in Calgary, Trudeau told Albertans the election of native-son Joe Clark as Prime Minister should end chronic complaints about the alienation of Western Canada from the rest of the country.

But he also warned that continued promotion of provincial interests at the expense of national goals will lead to the erosion of the federal system.

"My thesis is that this nation has been eroded, slowly at first, and I believe more rapidly in recent months," he told a Liberal party fundraising dinner.

Trudeau emphasised during the two-day visit his conviction that Clark's Conservative government has abdicated its responsibility to govern in the national interest, regardless of provincial concerns.

Judge absolves man for kicking boy

OTTAWA (CP) — A provincial court judge, recommending the occasional "swift kick in the pants" to discipline unruly children, gave a Toronto man an absolute discharge for kicking a 10-year-old boy in the stomach and punching him in the face.

"There is no question you are technically guilty of the offence," Judge J. M. Bordeleau told Henry Boucher, 29.

"The problem is you kicked him in the wrong place — you should have kicked him in the seat."

Boucher pleaded guilty to a charge of common assault after an incident in Ottawa earlier this year when Boucher interceded as the 10-year-old boy was beating up on the nine-year-old son of Boucher's friend.

The 10-year-old swore at Boucher, then ran, but Boucher caught up with him, pushed him to the ground, kicked him in the stomach and punched him in the face, court was told.

Clark policies disaster: NDP

CALGARY (CP) — The government of Joe Clark has pursued precisely the economic policies that Canadians rejected in the federal election just five months ago, NDP Leader Ed Broadbent said Saturday.

In a fiery speech to more than 300 delegates at the annual convention of the Alberta NDP, Broadbent blasted the federal government for what he called a lack of leadership, continuing unemployment, increasing inflation and a declining rate of growth.

Clark's decisions in the energy field have been disastrous, he said, pointing specifically to Clark's determination to sell parts of Petro-Canada, the state-owned oil company.

"I say let's keep Petro-Canada and sell Joe Clark."

Broadbent called Petro-Canada "the greatest Canadian success story in the whole economy in the last decade."

He said Clark has adopted "a rigid, doctrinaire form of laissez-faire free enterprise" laid down by former prime minister Pierre Trudeau in August, 1978, and rejected a "sensible, pragmatic view of a mixed economy."

Continuing high interest rates are hurting every consumer, farmer and small businessman in the country. Broadbent said Clark was saying this before the election, but has since raised interest rates four times.

"The prime minister either doesn't understand what's going on in the economy, or he has deceived the people of Canada both before the election and after the election."

He had promised jobs, tax cuts and controls on inflation, but had delivered on nothing.

Broadbent said Clark had decided to break up Petro-Canada at a time when the company was in a good position to help Canadians take control of their natural resources from foreign-owned oil companies.

The success of Petro-Canada is proof that public enterprise can work. The company must be retained to ensure some security of energy supply and continued exploration in frontier areas.

He said current tax laws allow oil companies reinvesting in Canadian resources to avoid taxation, increase profits and thus buy up more Canadian resources.

"We must be the first nation in the history of mankind that has financed its own takeover."

Petro-Canada also gives the country a window on the industry, he said, and provides competition for other oil companies.

Opening lead — five of diamonds.

This deal occurred in 1976 in a national team of four event. South was Billy Eisenberg of Los Angeles, well-known international star, and he got to six clubs on the sequence shown. Two diamonds was a transfer bid showing a heart suit and forcing North to bid two hearts. South's later bids were all natural, but his last bid, six clubs, was a calculated risk based on the hope that his partner had the rights cards in the right places (he didn't).

Ordinarily the contract would have gone down one, but Eisenberg made the slam because of an unusual play he made at trick one. West led the five of diamonds in accordance with a partnership arrangement to play the third- or fifth-best card on opening lead.

Eisenberg followed low from dummy — most declarers would have played the jack from dummy — and poor East found it difficult to play the seven on the trick. He played the queen and, as a result, Eisenberg made the slam. South ruffed the queen, led a club to the ace, and played the king of diamonds, covered by the ace and ruffed. Then came a club to the queen, a spade discard on the jack of diamonds, and the only trick eventually lost by declarer was a heart.

Eisenberg's low diamond play from dummy had a lot in its favor. From his point of view, West might have led from three to the queen, in which case it would be difficult for East, holding either A-10 or A-9, to play the ten or nine. Furthermore, if East actually had the A-Q, playing the jack from dummy was absolutely useless. All in all, Eisenberg's reasoning seems correct and, in the actual case, it worked out perfectly.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Tuesday, October 30, 1979
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You learn a secret. Be discreet. Don't bore others by telling all. Maintain aura of mystery, glamour. Get behind scenes. Delay or confinement can work in your favor. Hospital visit could be on agenda. You are on brink of important discovery.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Excitement, change, variety, intensified relationship—these areas are highlighted. Write, speak, paint, communicate—you are due to win friends and influence people. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play key roles.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Views are vindicated; family member makes major concession. Be a "gracious winner." Don't rub salt in wounds. Domestic harmony restored, especially if you purchase a special gift. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Define goals, strive to enhance quality of writing, communication, language. Articulate feelings; sky is limit if you so decide. Know it, accordingly. One who promises something for nothing should be ridiculed.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Dig deep for information—applies especially in connection with financial arrangements. Capricorn, Cancer natives figure prominently—and so does the number 8. One close to you confides experience "bordering on the occult."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Go slow, lie low—wait, listen and observe. Be aware of legal commitments, rights and permissions. Finish rather than initiate project. Aries, Libra individuals play key roles. Long-distance communication provides reason for optimism.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New approach to routine procedures is necessary. Stress originality, being open to love, getting to heart of matters. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Co-worker, one who shares interests, wants your approval.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Good lunar aspect coincides now with significant contacts, emotional encounters, falling madly in love. Follow through on hunch, learn by teaching, build on solid base. Emotions dominate logic. Know it and lead with chin as little as possible.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Diversify—stress versatility, optimism, new contacts. Accept social invitation; enlarge horizons, refuse to be discouraged by one who gossips, has little or no talent. Gemini, Virgo natives figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Obtain hint from Sagittarius message; break down habit patterns so you can reestablish on a more solid base. Message will come into focus. Short trip, connected with relative, could be on agenda.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emphasis on payments, getting money's worth, locating articles which were lost or stolen. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. If you ask questions, answers will be obtained. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius natives figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Lunar cycle is such that you smash barriers, stand tall, emerge victorious in competitions. Family member supports your position. Be gracious—and affectionate. Money dispute will be favorably resolved.

IF OCTOBER 30 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have sense of humor and a weight problem. Your body image is accentuated. You are versatile, you do more traveling than the average person—and members of opposite sex cater to you. Gemini, Sagitarrius persons play important roles in your life. You make significant changes in November, a month featuring change, travel, variety and an intensified relationship. Express, get views on paper, protect concepts, ideas, formats. Aura of confusion has prevailed through much of the year...along with acceleration of social activity.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J.A.H. HUNTER

The three children had their marbles spread out on the rug when Jane looked in. "What a lot!" she exclaimed. "How many have you got there?"

Betty smiled. "Gwen and I together have seventy-three," she replied. "But Andy and Gwen have got only sixty-two."

Andy looked up. "That's right," he said, "And Betty and I have sixty-five."

How many did he have?

(Answer tomorrow)

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

Time-lapse man giving talk on light

Those sunglasses perched on your nose may be making you sick and irrevocably damaging your eyes.

Sound far-fetched? John Nash Ott doesn't think so, and there are few men alive who know more about the effects of light on living organisms than Ott, the man who perfected time-lapse photography, doing much in that field for Walt Disney.

A 7 p.m. film on the effects of various light sources, colors and glasses on the vitality of plants, animals and people will precede a lecture by Ott at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Room A of the MacLaurin Building on the University of Victoria campus.

Ott will discuss the relationship of color TV radiation to cancer and the connection between fluorescent lighting to fatigue, malaise and hyperkinesis or hyperactivity in children.

He'll also tell how arthritis responds to a daily treatment of full-spectrum light, and why pink fluoresence can bring on hypertension headaches and insomnia.

Ott is particularly concerned that cancer research groups have closed their eyes to the connection between light and cancer, but his work received a moral boost in the scientific community when he was asked to conduct a seminar for scientists designing the first U.S. space station.

He's received several awards, notably the grand honors award of the National Eye Institute and the Jonathan Forman award for outstanding achievement in clinical ecology.

Ott was invited to speak in Victoria by the International Association of Cancer Victors and Friends, an association of cancer victims who have been cured.

The association will have people with flashlights waiting in parking lots and at the bus stop to accompany visitors to the lecture.

Shrubbery a filter for noise, pollution

While shrub-planting time is still with us, a few words may be useful regarding one of their important uses in today's world. That is, as barriers to harmful fumes and noise.

Thinking back to London suburbs of the early years of the century, the question arises, 'Were those endless privet hedges along street lines put there on the advice of some 'authority' who knew all about the polluting gases from coal fires?'

And the London Plane-trees along the street curbs? And the high laurel hedges and equally high rhododendrons around gardens further out, were they noise and fume barriers too?

Well, today we talk more of these things and thank our nurserymen that a great variety of attractive shrubs are available for similar purposes.

And today we know that density of growth is not so essential. We are thankful for this, since few Canadians like to be entirely shut away from the world as it passes our homes. Spreading leafy foliage, we are told by those who have studied both noise and noxious fumes, is capable of absorbing sound and fumes, and in the process produces air that is fit to breathe.

What shall we plant? Personal selections should prevail, for those who live in a home are the ones most concerned. The picture must be pleasing from outside and from inside, yet the shrubs should fulfill their purpose.

In this climate, where a variety of shrubs having evergreen leaves are hardy throughout winter, it seems possible to include a number of these in this functional hedge. They need not be all alike though, if that is a personal choice, the effect would be eye-catching in the case of a berberis hedge with brilliant color in fall and yellow flowers in spring; or a cotoneaster having masses of red berries against dark evergreen leaves.

The pyracantha (having the common name of Firethorn) is useful and attractive too with evergreen leaves and quantities of orange berries if not fully exposed to cold winter winds.

At a distance of 10 feet or so from the house, on a south or southwestern exposure, especially near saltwater, the old reliable Laurustinus (Viburnum tinus) could be used. Having good green leaves all year, and flowering from late October to early April, this is a dense shrub which needs an occasional break such as a small flowering crabapple tree — Malus sargentii or M. floribunda both with loose graceful habit which can be kept to around six or seven feet if desired.

All the suggested shrubs will attract small birds which are normally winter residents. Many nest in such shrubs, for they are naturally twiggy and not easily penetrated by larger predators.

This matter of guarding our homes from constant traffic noise and from potentially harmful fumes is becoming of some importance. We cannot all move out to silent spots. We take our noise with us, for we too are the creators of both the noise and the fumes. It is not all "they" who are the offenders — we ourselves contribute our share as we move around in today's life patterns.

But each person with a home and a property can do something about it.

It will be Mrs. Thatcher's first U.S. visit since forming her Conservative government after defeating Labor Prime Minister James Callaghan in May.

Drunk youths jailed

Five juveniles spent the night in police cells after Colwood RCMP broke up a noisy party attended by about 150 youths late Friday.

A police spokesman said seven officers dispersed the crowd from around a home at 2923 Pickford after neighbors lodged numerous complaints about drinking on the street and creating loud noise.

Three boys and two girls, all aged 15 and 16, were taken into custody for being drunk in a public place.

They were held in cells until arrangements could be made for their parents to pick them up.

No one was injured but police said several hundred dollars damage was done to the house.

Some furniture and a dishwasher broken. Police said the area around the house were littered with broken beer bottles and other garbage.

Police said the parents of the youth hosting the party had gone out for dinner and a night on the town.

Injured girl's mom eyes police probe

The mother of a 15-year-old runaway girl held in city police cells despite being severely injured in a traffic mishap just prior to her arrest is considering asking for a public hearing into the incident.

The woman is discussing her next move with her daughter's social worker today and has seven days to decide whether to pursue the matter further.

The mother said an informal hearing with police Friday failed to explain why her daughter wasn't given medical attention immediately after the accident Sept. 27.

"I am no further ahead," she said. "The meeting was just one big merry-go-round. It got nowhere. All they kept doing was going over and over the same thing and ending back at square one."

The girl, whose name can not be made public because she is a juvenile, was held seven hours in police cells before she was taken to Victoria General Hospital for treatment of a double skull fracture and broken collar bone.

She received the injuries when she fell from a 10-speed bike while being chased by police on Government Street.

The mother, who lodged a complaint to Police Chief Jack Gregory the week after the incident, met for three hours with arresting officers and jail staff at the Fisgard Street station.

The meeting, conducted by Insp. Les Mottershead, was an informal hearing, the first step a citizen lodging a complaint against police must take under the Police Act.

The next step is to request a hearing before the police board and if the complainant is still dissatisfied after that, the case may then be referred to the Police Commission. Both of those hearings are public.

The mother said Gregory wanted her daughter to be present at the informal hearing but the human resources ministry would not allow her to attend unless she had legal counsel present.

But, the mother said, Gregory refused to permit anyone at the meeting unless the person was directly involved in the case, and that included legal counsel.

She said she was told legal counsel is never allowed at informal hearings into complaints against police.

Sunk by movers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Brian Darby got that sinking feeling on Sunday.

His houseboat slid beneath the surface of Burrard Inlet a few metres from dockside after the plywood pontoons supporting the structure began taking water.

Darby was one of a dozen houseboaters moving to a new location in the city's False Creek area because of new construction at their old berths in Coal Harbor.

"It's strange," said a member of the tugboat crew towing Darby's two-storey, Spanish-style dwelling. "It happened in calm, smooth water.

"It's kind of a helpless feeling. You turn around, the lines go slack. You blink your eyes, she goes 45 degrees."

Tanker brief studied

A brief of proposals for safely increasing oil tanker traffic in Juan de fuca Strait will be reviewed by Saanich council tonight and submitted to the National Energy Board's oil port hearings in Vancouver next month.

The brief was prepared by Saanich emergency measures co-ordinator Jack Bush. It says Saanich is not opposed to increased tanker traffic in the strait if enough precautions are taken.

Bush proposes that the federal government underwrite cost of an oil spill cleanup in Canadian waters or lands.

He recommends oil tankers operating in Canadian waters comply with acceptable Canadian standards before they are licenced.

No port site should be considered unless it is acceptable to a majority of residents living in the area selected, Bush says in the brief.

Size of vessels operating in Canadian waters, especially those carrying environmentally dangerous cargoes, should be restricted, the brief states.

Bush says in dangerous areas control bases and experienced pilots should be made available to monitor ships.

The energy board is holding hearings on a proposal for a tanker off-loading station at Low Point, 29 kilometres west of Port Angeles just south of Sooke.

Draft pact aims to thwart theft of nuclear material by terrorists

VIENNA (Reuter) — Experts from 58 countries have concluded lengthy negotiations on an international convention aimed at preventing the theft of nuclear material by terrorists.

After more than two years of negotiations, the experts finished work on a draft text of a convention on the protection of nuclear material, which will be sent back to governments for final approval.

Completion of the negotiations on Friday was announced today by the Vienna-based International Atomic Energy Agency, which has been closely involved in the talks.

The convention for the first time would lay down standard measures for protecting nuclear material for peaceful purposes while it is being transported from one country to another.

The convention does not apply to nuclear weapons.

Signatory countries which do not adhere to the recommended measures would be banned from importing or exporting nuclear material.

The agreement also would require signatory countries to regard certain offences involving nuclear material as serious crimes and to extradite the criminals if asked.

Countries signing the convention also would be bound to co-operate in preventing the theft of nuclear material and to recover it if stolen.

The convention is the first major international agreement on the peaceful use of nuclear energy since the 1968 nuclear non-proliferation agreements, to which it is a supplement.

The convention is expected to be open for signature on March 3 simultaneously in Vienna and the United Nations in New York.

Among the 58 countries which took part in the negotiations were some that have not yet signed the non-proliferation treaty, such as India, Brazil, Argentina and Israel.

The chairman of the working group drafting the convention, D. L. Siazon of the Philippines, told a news conference today several problems had to be overcome during the negotiations.

Missile blew off 16 years later?

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — A prominent atomic scientist says the suspected nuclear blast detected recently by the United States may have been caused by a Soviet missile that crashed into the South Atlantic 16 years ago.

Professor J. R. Smit of the University of Westville was involved in a top-secret U.S.-South African project in 1963 to locate an errant Soviet missile that plunged into the sea 1,200 nautical miles off the coast of Cape Town.

Smit said that on Aug. 2, 1963 — two days before the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union were to sign a treaty banning atmospheric nuclear tests — a U.S. tracking station in South Africa picked up an object streaking down the African coast.

"The suspicion was this was a nuclear warhead missile the Russians wanted to test before the treaty was signed," Smit said.

A massive search was launched in an unsuccessful attempt to find the suspected missile.

"I believe the conclusion was it must have been a meteor, but with the present drama it could just be it was a nuclear warhead which has taken this long to explode," he said Sunday.

South Africa has denied all knowledge of the blast picked up by a U.S. weather satellite somewhere in the vicinity of the Indian, South Atlantic and Antarctic oceans.

Couple jump to death

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Fire erupted on the 11th floor of a 19-storey luxury apartment building in downtown Los Angeles today, killing at least three people, including two who jumped 11 storeys to their deaths.

Hundreds of residents were trapped by the blaze above the reach of fire department ladders.

A fire department spokesman said more than 24 engine companies responded to the blaze at Bunker Hill Towers on Figuera Street at 3 a.m. and had the fire under control an hour later.

The spokesman said one person died on the 11th floor of the building, and a firefighter at the scene said two others leapt to their deaths.

Next to the cloth-draped bodies of the two victims who jumped from the building were the covered remains of a small black poodle. The animal died in the arms of its master.

The names of the victims were not released.

N-protest mobs Wall Street

600 arrested; cheers echo on trading floor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hundreds of anti-nuclear demonstrators bottled up traffic for hours in the nation's most important financial district today, protesting against Wall Street's investments in nuclear energy.

The exchange opened on schedule at 10 a.m. local time on the 50th anniversary of the Great Crash of '29. Trading was reported moderate.

There was a great cheer from the trading floor and employees tossed scraps of paper into the air as the stock exchange opened.

"Usually they cheer when it closes, but today they're cheering when it opened," a broker said.

The exchange's senior vice- president, James Fuller, said the demonstration had "no effect on our ability to open."

By early afternoon, police said about 500 people had been issued universal summonses for disorderly conduct and were released pending a court later appearance. Another 100 people were arrested and held for refusing to give their names or refusing to walk to a local police stationhouse.

Police took instant snapshots — for use in court — of many of those arrested.

Shortly after dawn, the demonstrators began assembling behind police barricades in the Wall Street area and sat down on sidewalks and in the streets in an attempt to bar the workers' entry to the exchange.

But many workers arrived early and police used stretchers to cart away the protesters to waiting police vans and buses.

Despite some pushing and shoving at the barricades between demonstrators and police, there were no reports that protesters tried to harass physically employees who were trying to get to work.

But some workers complained of having to report early and of having to "walk a gauntlet" to get to their places of employment.

The demonstration was organized by an anti-nuclear group known as Wall Street Action. It said it would shut down the exchange by surrounding it with teams of 10 to 15 people trained in non-violent action.

Businesses distributed special passes for employees to use to enter offices in buildings throughout the Wall Street area today.

Two on yo-yo in mine shaft

ASHINGTON, England (UPI) — Safety engineers checking the emergency braking system on a 480-foot mineshaft elevator said they had no idea two miners were trapped inside during the bouncing tests.

"I never want to get back into a pit cage as long as I live," said Mark Hetherington, 20, who was bounced up and down inside the elevator for two hours during the weekend.

The elevator was raised to the surface and then sent into a free-fall four times to test the braking system before safety engineers realized the two men were inside.

"It was terrifying," said Hetherington, who was trapped along with John Scott, 40. "The force of each drop stretched the cable and the cage bounced up and down as if we were elastic."

Officials said the safety engineers apparently failed to receive a signal when the two men entered the elevator at the mine floor for their ascent.

"We are satisfied this unfortunate incident happened as a result of confusion over signaling," said a spokesman for the National Coal Board. "This was a case of human error and no disciplinary action is being taken."

Wolfe puts surplus at $188M

VANCOUVER (CP) — Increased revenues from tourism, timber sales and the sale of oil and natural gas produced a budgetary surplus of $188.6 million for the first half of this fiscal year, Finance Minister Evan Wolfe said today.

The surplus to Sept. 30 was $162.5 million more than originally forecast and $74.2 million greater than the surplus for the same period last year.

The government will be drawing on the surplus in the third quarter, Wolfe said, because expenditures in that period are expected to exceed revenues by $72.2 million.

He said he still believes there will be a balanced budget at the end of the fiscal year, March 31, 1980.

British Columbia has not yet felt any negative effects from the recent escalation of interest rates or from the slowdown in the United States economy, Wolfe said.

He said unexpected continued strength in the U.S. housing market has resulted in a strong demand for B.C. lumber. Revenue from from timber sales was $58.5 million above the forecast.

Revenue from oil and gas permits and fees was $36.5 million above forecast as a result of increased interest in exploration. B.C. Petroleum Corp. profits were $32.2 million more than forecast because of an increase in the volume and price of export sales.

The active tourist season was reflected in a 22.9-per-cent increase in revenues from the hotel and motel room tax, he said.

Capital investment and consumer spending also showed strong growth. There was an 18.7-per-cent increase in revenue from the sales tax.

Another $800 million error in U.S. bookkeeping

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials of the U.S. Federal Reserve Board disclosed today that another $800-million error has been discovered in the country's money supply figures in addition to the $3-billion mistake discovered last week.

Representative Henry Reuss (Dem. Wis.), chairman of the House of Representatives banking committee, called the miscalculation of the money supply a "monumental goof" equivalent to a "monetary Three Mile Island."

"The past few weeks have been among the most chaotic in the financial markets since the Great Crash of 1929, 50 years ago," with much of the chaos resulting from the faulty money supply figures, Reuss said.

But two members of the board, appearing before the banking committee, tried to assure Reuss and other congressmen that the miscalculation was not their fault and did not influence the board's recent actions.

"This error was corrected before it could have any appreciable impact on the way we conduct monetary policy," said Charles Partee, one of the seven members of the Federal Reserve Board.

The latest error meant the money supply in recent weeks grew by $3.8 billion less than the board said it did. The rapid growth of the money supply during this period was the chief reason the board gave for its decision on Oct. 6 to raise interest rates in a effort to slow money growth.

But Board Vice-Chairman Frederick Schultz told the banking committee that even after discounting the errors, the money supply still expanded in early October at more than a 10-per-cent annual rate, a rate of growth that the board feels encourages inflation.

Schultz said the latest $800-million error, like the other $3-billion, was the result of mistakes in money reporting by the Manufacturers Hanover Bank in New York City and he did not rule

City fire total $2M?

By DEREK SIDENIUS

City fire officials were today trying to determine the cause of a spectacular fire that gutted a 25,000-square-foot warehouse in James Bay Saturday night.

Damage from the fire, the largest in the Victoria area this year, is expected to run more than $1 million and could hit $2 million.

George Payne, general manager of McQuade's Ships Chandlers, the principle tenant of the building at 35 Erie Street, said today he would not have a loss figure until later in the day after staff have completed an inventory check.

He said the warehouse — a former bottling plant vacated in June by Goodwill Bottlers — was filled with stock that had been transferred from his company's smaller warehouse at 786 Fairview over the past month.

"We've spent most of the year getting organized for the move," he said. "We'd just got moved in and had everything working fine. The fire couldn't have hit at a worse time."

Payne said that contrary to earlier reports the fire will not result in any lay-offs.

The retail office at 1252 Wharf was not affected and, for the time being, the com-

Puzzle stumps everybody

Game 4 of the Win The Island game in the Saturday Times was a mighty tough puzzle.

So tough, in fact, that the solution was impossible.

And all because of a missing circle. It seems six circles were provided for the "Mystery Island" when there should have been seven.

As a result, with apologies to all those frustrated puzzle solvers, Game 4 has been wiped out altogether and the contest has been extended for another week with a fresh puzzle this Saturday.

Strait lightning forces jet back to Vancouver

An Air Canada flight from Vancouver to Victoria had to turn back on the weekend after the plane was hit by lightning.

There were no injuries. The jolt knocked a metal panel off the plane, near the nose.

Flight 143, a stretch DC-8 with 106 passengers aboard, had left Vancouver at 10:55 p.m. Saturday night and was less than half way to Victoria when the incident occurred.

An Air Canada spokesman said a pilot uses his discretion after a lightning hit about whether to continue or return.

In this case, because he was closer to Vancouver, he decided to return and have the plane inspected.

Loss of the compressor panel was the only damage.

Lightning strikes are rare on the Victoria-Vancouver route, the spokesman said.

Essential radio ops returning

Contract negotiations between government and union representatives are scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. EST Tuesday in an effort to end the national dispute that has curtailed air traffic at many smaller airports.

About half of the 1,167 government-employed radio operators are designated by law during the legal strike to perform services considered essential to the safety and security of the public.

For a week, most of the designated operators at 142 airport and marine radio stations have performed only emergency service or have walked off the job.

The union spokesman said full essential services will be provided as of midnight. Regional strike co-ordinators got agreement from union members for the move after a weekend discussion between treasury board and union representatives.

In Toronto, Art Curtis, the union's Ontario regional chairman, said 54 airport radio stations were shut down and 78 operators received notices they will be suspended for a minimum three days on grounds they did not provide essential services.

The operators, without a contract since July, 1978, normally provide emergency communications, weather and safety reports, flight-planning services and man runway lights.

One Canadian woman in 6 living in poverty — report

TORONTO (CP) — One Canadian woman in six lives in poverty, says a recent report by the National Council on Welfare.

And most of these women are old, sick, single or heads of families living on welfare, it says.

The report says that since 1961, the number of Ontario mothers supporting children on social assistance has increased by more than 300 per cent because of the rapidly-rising divorce and desertion rate and the increasing difficulty single mothers have in finding work.

"The majority of Canadian women, whatever their background, are very vulnerable to becoming poor overnight," the report says.

"Because it is still taken for granted that women will assume the bulk of responsibility for raising the children and maintaining the home, they are improperly trained for paid jobs and are denied access to better positions with advancement opportunities."

Governments have kept welfare and family benefit payments close to the minimum wage level to provide an incentive to work — on maximum welfare benefits a single person receives $222 a month, two persons $374, and four persons $570 a month.

But these benefits often run about $1,000 below the Statistics Canada poverty level, established last year for a family of three.

When women try to support their families on a low income, the result is often hunger, the report says.

A Toronto woman who has raised eight children on mother's allowance over the last 12 years says: "Anywhere you find people on welfare at the end of the month, you'll figure hunger.

"Every dime I get has to do a quarter's work."

Bridge 'unsafe'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A construction crew working on the damaged Canadian National Railway bridge across Burrard Inlet walked off the job Sunday because the workers believed the structure was unsafe.

About 20 men, members of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, refused to work when they discovered a shim under the northeast leg of the bridge's north tower had come free. A shim is a metal wedge used to join larger pieces of iron.

CNR spokesman Al Menard said the workmen, employed by Canron Inc., feared the tower had moved overnight, dislodging the shim and making the tower unsafe.

He said Canron engineers inspected the structure Sunday and found no evidence the tower had moved or shifted.

The engineers will report their findings to the union today, but it is not known if the workers will return to the job.

The bridge was knocked out of service two weeks ago when a 25,000-ton Japanese freighter rammed into it while leaving the harbor in dense fog.

Crewman missing

In company with the destroyer-escorts HMCS Saskatchewan and HMCS Mackenzie, the Qu'Appelle had been in Pearl Harbor from Oct. 18 to 25 and was due to arrive in San Diego Nov. 2.

Taking part in an air search are a U.S. Coast Guard C130 Hercules search aircraft from the naval air station Barker's Point in Hawaii and a U.S. Orion anti-submarine aircraft.

Five die in fire

Canadian Press

Five members of one family were killed Sunday in a house fire in Powell River.

Police said the fire was started by a faulty heater. A pipe leading from an oil space heater caused a wall to heat up and ignite.

RCMP said the bodies of Carl Douglas Kingsbury, 36, his wife Margaret Rose, 33, and children Paul, 5, Laurette, 3, and Carl, 1, were found in one room of the house.

PCBs tainted minks' feed

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — The $20-million a year mink industry in the Fraser Valley could be wiped out because the animals' feed has been laced with PCBs (polychlorinated biphenyls), says Chris Engh, B.C. Mink Producers Association president.

Engh said the PCBs have come from waste chicken meat that mink farmers buy from poultry slaughter houses.

He said most of the valley's 45 to 50 mink herds and their feed are being tested by federal authorities.

"We feel there is no doubt that the PCBs came from the chicken meat," he said, "But Ralph Houghton, a federal representative, has refused to tell us the levels of PCBs in chicken meat the government has tested."

Engh said about 12 farms have received preliminary results from the branch and the PCB levels "range from .341 parts per million (ppm) to 3.07 ppm in the animals tested."

PCBs are toxic chemicals most often used as a coolant in transformers.

The PCBs contained in the chicken meat were found in feed that was contaminated by a leaky transformer at a Billings, Mont., processing plant last June.

No poultry has been destroyed in B.C. but 25,000 birds were slaughtered in Washington state when it was found they had PCB levels of more than 1.5 ppm.

B.C. presently has about six million pounds of frozen chicken meat in storage but the federal government has not said how much has been tested or given a detailed explanation of contamination levels.

The Great Pumpkin Run is one way to get a head start on Halloween, as these youngsters at Margaret Jenkins school demonstrate. Each student was given a paper pumpkin with his or her name on it. At the end of the run, names went into a box for a draw to determine the winners of 48 real pumpkins.

Ghosts, goblins will be out so be extra careful

Bonfires will burn all over Greater Victoria Wednesday to scare off the ghouls, ghosties and witches.

Halloween, or All Hallows as it was known in bygone days, will be celebrated by thousands of children at organized bonfires in most municipalities.

The Victoria West Community Development Association will hold its bonfire at Victoria West Park where there will be a costume contest at 7 p.m., plus refreshments for children.

At Oak Bay's Firemen's Park, the fire will be lit at 6 p.m. There will be a fancy dress parade, prizes and hot dogs and pop will be served.

The Esquimalt Lions Club will host a party at Kinsmen Gorge Park from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Saanich police and fire officials are unaware of any plans for organized celebrations in the municipality, but expect plenty of private parties.

The Sidney fun starts at 4 p.m. at Sanscha Hall where a costume party will be held for children.

It will be followed by a bonfire and fireworks at Tulista Park at 6 p.m. and hot dogs and coffee will be served.

The North Saanich fire department will hold its bonfire at 6 p.m. in a field at the corner of Wains and West Saanich roads.

The Central Saanich Lions Club will also hold a bonfire in a field south of Bolsters Garage at the corner of Wallace and West Saanich.

Meanwhile, police advise trick-or-treating youngsters to wear light-colored clothing — or something bright so they can be seen by motorists.

In addition, youngsters should not wear any kind of mask which hampers their vision. Police and safety officials say parents or a responsible older child should accompany toddlers.

They also urge parents to check Halloween handouts carefully.

In 1978 there were two complaints from Victoria West about apples being handed out with needles hidden inside.

Three races for mayor will be the main events of the Nov. 17 civic elections in the Victoria core municipalities while Esquimalt is just not bothering this year.

In Victoria, three alderman are slugging it out in an evenly-matched contest — Murray Glazier, John Hayes and Bill Tindall.

Saanich's mayoralty race will see incumbent Mel Couvelier ranked against outsider Ernest McGregor, a retired brigadier-general, while the aldermanic race puts eight candidates up for the four vacancies. Only two of them are incumbents — Geoff Vantreight and Howard Sturrock.

Oak Bay is another area where the elections seem to have created little interest. Mayor Brian Smith is retiring this year to devote all his time to his other official job as Oak Bay MLA.

Only two candidates are jousting for his job in a quiet campaign — lawyer and ex-alderman John Goult and engineer Doug Watts, an incumbent alderman.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices edged up in light trading as chanting anti-nuclear demonstrators failed to halt trading on the 50th anniversary of one of the worst days of the 1929 stock market crash.

A cheer went up on the NYSE as the opening gong signalled the start of trading. Outside, 850 protestors were arrested as they tried to keep brokers and other workers from entering the stock exchange building.

Oct. 29, 1929 came to be known as "Black Tuesday" as volume reached a staggering 16.41 million shares. The day before the Dow average had plunged 38.33 points to set a record that still stands.

The demonstrators had demanded the NYSE stop trading in stocks related to nuclear energy. Some of those stocks moved lower, with J. Ray McDermott, the maker of the reactor at Three Mile Island, down ¼ to $20⅝ and General Public Utilities, its owner, down ⅛ to $8.

But Combustion Engineering, another nuclear equipment maker, rose ¾ to $45. Oil issues were strong whether or not they have large nuclear commitments. Exxon rose ⅝ to $56⅞ and Kerr-McGee rose ¼ to $56¾. Gulf rose ⅞ to $32⅞ and Mobil climbed 1⅛ to $47⅞.

The labor department reported that productivity of the U.S. workforce rose at an annual rate of 0.1 per cent in the third quarter after two quarters of steep declines.
